McCORMACK:

Influence Peddling Is Denied

New York (UPI) — House Speaker John W. McCormack, describing himself as "not an inquiring fellow," testified in federal court Thursday that he was ignorant of any influence peddling out of his Washington congressional office.

The 78-year-old Massachusetts Democrat, who will retire from politics at the end of the year, was pale and he spoke slowly in answering questions about his suspended administrative aide, Dr. Martin Sweig, and Nathan Voloshen, a McCormack friend of 20 years. Only once, he said, did he suspect Sweig might have used his name without permission.

"I called him in and he told me he had not and that it must be a misunderstanding," McCormack testified. Asked by U.S. Atty. Whitney North Seymour Jr. if he had pressed the matter, McCormack said, "I didn't go that far into it."

45 Witnesses So Far
Sweig is on trial for conspiracy and perjury, charges which also were brought against Voloshen, who pleaded guilty. Some 45 witnesses have testified on various episodes involving alleged use of the power and prestige of McCormack's office by Sweig and Voloshen to sway government agencies for the benefit of paying "clients."

McCormack testified that Sweig, 48, began working for him as a young man and was "devoted." He said he had given Sweig the top position in his office — which McCormack said he rarely visited after being made speaker — and let him select his own title. As for Voloshen, a registered lobbyist, he had been a friend who came to Washington from New York about twice a week, but McCormack said he never knew Voloshen used his office and his telephone.

"I'm not an inquiring fellow," McCormack said. "I never ask people what they're down to (to Capitol Hill) for."

Once Suspicious
McCormack said he was momentarily suspicious of Sweig when an Army general, whose name he could not recall, called the speaker concerning a request McCormack had made and seemed to think he had talked to McCormack before. It was then that he questioned Sweig about using his name and received a denial.

"My general office policies did not allow individuals to pass themselves off as me during telephone conversations," he said.

McCormack denied calling Fort Jackson, S.C., in 1968 about the transfer of a soldier named Roth whose father-in-law testified he paid Voloshen to get a transfer. He said he never called the University of Delaware, whose admissions director testified about pressure brought on him by Sweig and purportedly McCormack to admit the son of a labor racketeer.

Not Against Policy
In connection with a call Sweig purportedly made to a prison official regarding the transfer of a Massachusetts Mafia convict, McCormack said there was nothing in his office policy against making such a request.

"I would do it myself," he said. "I would have no hesitancy in doing that. I would consider that a perfectly proper request . . . that isn't a matter that would fall into a sensitive area, as I've defined it."

The speaker said he had no knowledge of the Parvin-Dohrmann and Trimatrix Companies, officers of which testified they had paid Voloshen to smooth out cases pending before the Securities and Exchange Commission. Voloshen and Sweig were both alleged to have used McCormack's name in getting favorable rulings for the firms.

McCormack also denied that his staff members were authorized to use his private limousine without his knowledge.

LINCOLN CHILDREN GETTING READY FOR THE FOURTH

Raw Sewage Going Into Salt Creek

... EFFLUENT IS FROM SOYBEAN PLANT, NORTHEAST HAVELOCK

By TOM EKVAL
Star Staff Writer

During the past several weeks, the city of Lincoln has been allowing raw sewage from Archer Daniels Midland Co. and northeast Havelock to drain into the Salt Creek, Public Utilities Director Lee Blocker confirmed Thursday.

Blocker told The Star that state and federal officials are aware of the sewage emptying into Salt Creek and "are allowing it" as a temporary measure while the sewage treatment lagoons northeast of Lincoln are being worked on.

The city is installing aerators in the aerated sections of the lagoons to facilitate the treatment of sewage.

The improvement was needed to eliminate foul odors coming from the lagoons. The pungent odors were created by the lagoons' inability to handle wastes odorlessly because of the presence of the oily film from the soybean extracting plant.

Jobless Rate Off To 4.7% For May

Washington (UPI) — Unemployment shot up by 1.3 million persons in June as students leaving school flooded the labor market, but the unemployment rate declined for the first time in six months to 4.7% of the labor force, the government said Thursday.

In May, 5% of the labor force was without jobs.

The Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics did not place much significance on the fall in the jobless rate, which is adjusted for seasonal factors. A key such factor was that fewer new persons than usual were looking for jobs in June, when schools closed and some jobs are terminated for the summer.

Normally, unemployment increases by about 1.5 million persons in June, or 200,000 more than the boost last month.

"The reduction in unemployment occurred almost entirely among adult women, whose jobless rate dropped from 5.1% to 4.5% in June after rising sharply in May," said Harold Goldstein, assistant BLS commissioner.

This could be a statistical quirk or a correction of the sharp rise in May, he said. "The unemployment rate for women is irregular, there (a change) doesn't necessarily show what is going to happen," he said.

All the May-to-June drop in joblessness took place among white workers. The rate for them declined from 4.6% to 4.2% in June, while the rate for Negroes rose from 8 to 8.7%, mostly among teenagers.

Goldstein said there was "considerable economic significance" in the decline in total nonfarm payroll employment in June for the third straight month.

Actual unemployment increased from 3.4 million persons in May to 4.7 million in June, but Goldstein said this was 200,000 persons fewer than what could normally be expected for the month. When seasonal adjustments are applied, unemployment fell from 4.1 million to 3.9 million.

Goldstein said the household survey on which the figures were based was taken at a time when the full impact of the end of the school year may not have been felt.

He also noted that employment average 78.5 million seasonally adjusted in the three months ended June 30.

Bacteria which thrive on oxygen in the lagoon are used for treating wastes. The oily waste prevented sunlight from getting to the bacteria and stilled wind's agitation of the water. Both sunlight and wind are essential for an odor-free treatment process.

The aerators will stir air into the water, allowing wastes to decompose normally.

"So far, we are right on schedule," Blocker said regarding the installation of the aerators. The work is being done by Dobson Bros., Construction Co. at a cost of $51,745.

'Not Jumping On City'
Blocker said state and federal officials "are not jumping on the city because of the correctional plans," which he said are scheduled to be completed "by July 27." All wastes would then be treated at the lagoons.

"We have their approval (to dump raw wastes) although they are not happy about the situation," Blocker said when questioned about the dumping of raw sewage into Salt Creek.

Federal officials last week had jumped on the city of Omaha for letting raw sewage from a packinghouse drain into the Missouri River.

Blocker said the decision to send northeast Havelock wastes into the Salt Creek was "a decision that I made."

HEW Secretary Warns 3 Schools To Integrate Or Lose Federal Aid

Washington (AP) — Reviving a civil rights weapon that was largely abandoned nearly a year ago, the Health, Education and Welfare Department Thursday threatened three segregated Southern school districts with loss of federal funds unless they dismantle dual systems for blacks and whites.

Secretary Elliot L. Richardson said the districts' federal education money would be cut off in 30 days unless they comply with desegregation guidelines.

With one exception, the cutoff device — used extensively by the Johnson administration to enforce Supreme Court desegregation orders — has lain dormant since last August.

Districts Named

Named Thursday as targets for loss of federal assistance were the Hendry County Board of Public Instruction in Florida, Nacogdoches Independent School District in Texas and the Chester County School District in South Carolina.

The South Carolina and Florida districts were among holdout, segregated Southern districts threatened with legal action by the Justice Department.

Richardson said his department will "maintain communication" with the three districts and "provide all assistance necessary to bring them into compliance with the law."

Spokesmen for the department could not say immediately how much money is involved in the cutoff threat.

The only other such action in the past 10 months was May 12 against the Pevitt Independent School District at Omaha, Tex. The district's federal funds have been shut off.

Court Action Preferred
Nixon administration officials indicated last year they preferred taking holdout districts to court through desegregation suits rather than ending federal assistance. They maintained the cutoffs hurt the students, black as well as white, more than the school boards responsible for the dual systems.

Civil rights groups, however, had seen the policy shift then as a backing away from the federal commitment to end illegal segregation in Southern schools.

Jerris Leonard, chief of the Justice Department's civil rights division, hinted Wednesday the administration would resume use of the cutoff provision of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 to gain desegregation compliance.

Signatures' Total Said Insufficient

... Deadline Is Today

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

All four petition efforts to place initiative proposals on the 1970 general election ballot have apparently failed.

Supporters of the school reorganization proposal sponsored by the Cornhusker Education Corporation announced Thursday that their drive fell 9,000 signatures short of success.

Treutler 15,000 Short

Omaha advertising man A. J. Treutler told newsmen at the secretary of state's office, where he filed 2,856 additional signatures, that his limited governmental spending proposal is about 15,000 names short of the number required to qualify for this year's ballot.

But Treutler said he will go to court in an attempt to keep his petition drive alive for the 1972 election.

Meanwhile, S. H. "Zeke" Brauer Jr., executive secretary of the Nebraska School Improvement Association, told The Star by telephone that his organization's two petition proposals are short of the required number of signatures.

"At the moment, we don't have enough," Brauer said.

Deadline Today

The deadline for filing petitions with the secretary of state falls at 5 p.m. Friday.

The NSIA is pushing petition proposals to limit governmental spending and to reinstate the intangible property tax in the event that the state approves mandatory school reorganization.

A statewide total of at least 48,640 signatures distributed so as to contain at least 5% of the number of voters in at least 38 counties is required to qualify initiative proposals for inclusion on the 1970 ballot.

Frank Landis of Lincoln, president of the CEC, said the school district reorganization drive met the county distribution qualification by reaching the 5% requirement in 45 counties.

But "lack of interest in the campaign was most evident in metropolitan areas, long reorganized," Landis said.

3,266 From Douglas
Douglas County, where petitioners hoped to gather 11,296 signatures (or 10% of the voters), produced only 3,266 names, he noted.

Lancaster was one of 13 counties which provided a 10% signature count.

"Most significant," Landis suggested, "is that counties most in need of reorganization were the first to qualify. Moreover, the percentage of petition signatures is substantially higher in counties with the largest number of Class I (rural elementary) districts."

The proposal would have required unified (K-12) school reorganization throughout the state.

Brauer 'Delighted'

Brauer, informed of the CEC statement, said he is "delighted we do not have to go through a knock-down, dragout battle over this issue."

The NSIA intangible property tax petition "accomplished its purpose," Brauer suggested, by counteracting the school reorganization drive.

NSIA petitions have been hampered by an invalid signature disqualification rate of 16% to 17%, Brauer said.

Treutler Plans Suit
Treutler told newsmen he will continue to gather signatures for 1972, then file suit to challenge two laws enacted by the 1969 Legislature.

LB935 prohibits the secretary of state from accepting petitions which would interfere with the Legislature's power to determine revenue laws.

LB1350 would void all petitions after each general election, thus preventing Treutler from adding new signatures to those he has already filed in Lincoln. In effect, he would have to begin anew for the 1972 election.

Treutler filed his first petitions in January 1968.

An attorney general's opinion, prepared at the request of State Sen. William Skarda of Omaha, casts doubts on the constitutionality of both 1969 laws, Treutler said.

Power Record Set In Nebraska Heat

Omaha (AP) — A new all-time high net firm power load was reported Thursday by the Nebraska Public Power District.

NPPD said Nebraskans it serves used 1,097,900 kilowatts of electricity between 5 and 6 p.m. Thursday. The old record was 1,070,000 set Monday.

NPPD serves all of Nebraska outside the Omaha Public Power District.

Dale Renner, special assistant to the mayor for the Lincoln Electric System, said Lincolinites have been heavy users of electricity this week.

Renner said the peak electrical load is up approximately 7% since Monday over last year's peak. He attributed the increase to heavy use of air conditioning in the city.

Lincoln police Thursday evening received reports of power failures in Bethany, mainly around 69th and Colby, and also along the 500 block of Jefferey Drive.

Police said the extreme heat and overloading of air-conditioning units were the cause of the outages. Police said power in Bethany was out for approximately two hours.

CITY'S 103 IS HIGHEST SINCE 1911

Lincolinites at 5:20 p.m. Thursday experienced a temperature of 103 degrees, equaling the record set for July 2, 1911, according to the Weather Bureau.

Fairbury's high temperature was officially 105.

Temperatures throughout the state ranged from a mild 89 in Chadron to 100 degrees in Hastings and Burwell.

Other temperatures ranged from 91 in Alliance and 92 in Ainsworth, jumping to 98 in Kearney and Imperial, and hitting the 99-degree mark in Grand Island and Omaha.

The highest temperature ever recorded at the Lincoln Weather Bureau was 115 degrees on July 25, 1936.

Thailand Warns Action In Cambodia Possible

Manila (AP) — Thailand may be forced to take military action in Cambodia if the danger of enemy incursions increases on the Thai frontier, it told the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization on Thursday.

Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman, at a closed meeting of the SEATO council of ministers, made clear that his country does not covet an inch of Cambodian territory, said a SEATO spokesman.

Thanat will meet Friday with Secretary of State William P. Rogers, American officials reported.

No Intentions Seen

There was no indication that Thailand was considering any immediate entry into the Cambodian war. Instead, a careful appraisal appeared to be under way of what support the United States could provide in the training and equipping of Thai forces for volunteer duty in Cambodia. About 3,000 Thais and Thais of Cambodian descent have volunteered to fight in Cambodia.

Rogers told the delegates that President Nixon asked him to say that the United States would do everything it can to support American commitments in Southeast Asia.

According to U.S. officials, Rogers reported that the United States is reducing its forces in an orderly and planned way that would permit time for Asian allies to take over the primary responsibility for their own defenses.

Rogers reviewed developments in Southeast Asia for the SEATO delegates since their last meeting.

He said that in the U.S. view South Vietnam has become stronger and North Vietnam has been unable to mount any sustained major attack. He added that this would permit the withdrawal of 150,000 more U.S. troops by next spring.

In Laos, Rogers said there had been an unusually severe offensive by North Vietnamese forces which compelled both a military and political response and led to increased U.S. bombing activity.

In Cambodia, Rogers repeated the Nixon administration theme that the United States had caused significant damage to the North Vietnamese war machine.

British Undersecretary of State Anthony Royal told the delegates the new Conservative government intended to consult as soon as possible with its Commonwealth allies about its proposal to keep military troops in the Malaysia-Singapore area after 1971.

AUSTRALIANS TENSE AFTER OPERATION

Australian soldiers show haggard face of war as they sit in armored personnel carrier on way back to their command post following a three-day operation in South Vietnam's Phuoc Tuy province, south of Saigon. The troops are with the 7th Royal Australian Regiment, which has been in Vietnam since 1965.

Earth Day Group Gathers

Onaway, Mich. (AP) — Sponsors of last April's Earth Day say they will take their campaign for a cleaner environment into the political arena and seek to elect candidates "committed to new solutions and new priorities."

Some 250 youths are being recruited from college campuses and environmental action groups across the country to attend a conference here July 17-19 to decide "where we go from here."

The meeting, to be held at the Family Education Center of the United Auto Workers Union, was the idea of the late UAW President Walter P. Reuther, who was killed in a plane crash May 9.

Youth-Led Campaign

He had invited leaders of the Earth Day movement "to come together, so that Earth Day will not signal the ending, but the beginning" of a youth-led campaign for environmental cleanup.

Prime sponsor of the event is Environmental Action, Inc. — one of two wings into which the Earth Day sponsor, Environmental Teach-in, Inc., has now been divided.

The other wing is Environmental Resources Inc., set up primarily for research and resource information to be passed on in the form of handbooks, bibliographies and the like to form "a strong information support base for local activities."

Environmental Action is seeking "to lend leadership and translate critical issues into effective tactics for use by local groups."

Action-Centered

Barbara Reid, 23, Birmingham, Mich., is national coordinator for the conference. She says it will discuss "how to get a handle on action once you define local problems, how to handle public relations and how to get around the military-industrial complex propaganda."

It doesn't propose to limit itself to the environment, reporting in a recent news letter that "we expect to organize and help coordinate many future lobbying efforts" against the war in Southeast Asia and development of the supersonic transport plane.

"Consumer boycotts, corporate investigations and law suits against those who fail to protect the public interests will be major concerns," the newsletter says.

November Target

"One of the key areas of emphasis throughout the remainder of 1970," it says, "will be the November elections."

"Environmental Action will seek to identify key candidates, issues and districts where involvement could help elect those committed to new solutions and new priorities for our most persistent problems..."

Draft Youth Advisers Urge Volunteer Force

Washington (UPI) — The youths who drew the capsules for the national draft lottery came out in favor of an all-volunteer armed force Thursday because they said compulsory military service "is a punishment, not an honorable occupation."

They also proposed that, since Congress gave 18-year-olds the right to vote, the draft age should be lowered to 18 and that student and most other deferments be eliminated.

These were among a long list of recommendations the National Selective Service Youth Advisory Committee presented to Selective Service Director Curtis W. Tarr at the end of a five-day meeting that coincided with Wednesday's lottery. The 108 advisory committee members drew the dates and numbers that set the 1971 order of draft call for young men who had their 19th birthdays this year.

Tarr Agrees

Tarr told the youths he agreed with many of their suggestions, and that some already had been implemented. He noted that President Nixon has supported the all-volunteer armed force concept and has urged Congress to eliminate student and most other deferments.

The student advisers also proposed that future draft lotteries apply to youths with 17th birthday in the year of the drawing to give them more time to plan for the time when they would become vulnerable to the draft, whether at age 18 or 19.

Another recommendation supported alternate types of national service for conscientious objectors. But the youths said they opposed granting conscientious objector status to persons opposed to specific wars and not war in general.

Image Improvement

The committee also recommended improved administrative procedures by the Selective Service to make it harder for people to "manipulate" the system. They urged improvement in the system's public image through increased educational programs, especially in high schools.

Air Strikes By Royal Thai Fighters Into Cambodia Reported In Bangkok

The New York Times

London Times Dispatch Bangkok — Royal Thai air force fighters launched their first air strikes inside Cambodia Wednesday, informed sources said in Bangkok Thursday.

Several T-28 bombers were reported to have destroyed an arms depot and field installations at Ban Phai, a village about five miles from the Thai frontier at Sisaket.

There were also unconfirmed reports that the planes attacked a Communist troop concentration that overran the village on Tuesday.

Reinforcements Sent

Thai reinforcements were rushed Thursday to Sisaket, about 220 miles northeast of Bangkok, amid reports that sporadic fighting was continuing at Ban Phai between Communists and Cambodian troops cut off from their units. Thai and Cambodian government officials are to map out a joint defensive strategy for a possible clash with the Communists.

Meanwhile, about 200 Cambodian troops who had been defending Ban Phai, together with their dependents and other civilians, have taken sanctuary at Sisaket. As they retreated, Communist artillery began firing in their wake and some shells fell in Thai territory, Bangkok sources said.

The air raid was apparently designed to deny the Communist use of the weapons that the retreating Cambodian units left behind. The few arms the Cambodians brought with them into Thailand are believed to be held by Thai police.

Raid Not Admitted

Since the government in Bangkok has not officially acknowledged the raid, the extent to which it marks a new phase of Thai involvement in the Indochina war is unclear.

Marshal Thanom Kittikachorn, the prime minister, Thursday averted a newsman's question about the use of Thai forces in Cambodia and, specifically, whether he agreed with U.S. Secretary of State Rogers that the combat burden now fell on Thailand and South Vietnam.

But Thanom felt sufficiently assured to say that the United States would supply weapons aid if Thai troops became engaged in Cambodia.

Draft Ceiling Number For August Is 195

Washington (AP) — Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr announced Thursday a top limit of No. 195 for draft calls in August and said numbers called for the rest of the year probably would not mount much beyond that level.

The August limit of 195 is only five lottery-numbers higher than the limit set for draft calls in July — an indication, Tarr said, that the draft pool is being replenished, as expected, with low-numbered men now losing deferments.

The influx is composed mostly of former college students losing their deferments upon graduation.

This, Tarr said in an official statement, is "really helping our manpower situation."

August Call Hits 83 Nebraskans

State Selective Service Director Col. Lee Liggett reported that the Nebraska draft call for August is 83 men.

The Defense Department announced the official draft call of 10,000 men, the lowest monthly draft call since last December when 9,000 men were summoned to duty.

The 1969 August call for the state was 239 men, with the national call at a high 29,500.

The 1970 June and July call was 15,000, with the state call in June for 182 men and 131 men in July.

GI Deaths Hit 104; Four Aircraft Lost

Saigon (AP) — American battle deaths rose last week to 104 from 80 the week before, the U.S. Command reported Thursday. Thirty-four Americans were killed in Cambodia. The command also disclosed the loss of four aircraft this week in Laos, with nine crewmen missing.

The casualty total was reported as heavy fighting broke out in the northern stretches of South Vietnam. One was the biggest battle of the year between South Vietnamese and North Vietnamese.

The fighting in the north was expected, since the North Vietnamese there did not have their border sanctuaries disrupted, as was the case with other enemy units far to the south.

Attack At Hue

In the first battle, North Vietnamese troops attacked a U.S. 101st Airborne Division unit with rifles and satchel charges early Thursday, spokesman said. The Americans, camped for the night in jungled mountains 25 miles west of the old imperial capital of Hue, suffered eight killed and four wounded.

The paratroopers called in artillery and helicopter gunships and reported killing 15 enemy soldiers.

The ground attack came a day after a nearby 101st Airborne fire base was pounded repeatedly by enemy mortar fire. Light U.S. casualties were reported in the shelling.

'Street Without Joy'

Heavier fighting broke out to the northeast along the coast 15 miles below the demilitarized zone. South Vietnamese 1st Division troops claimed they killed 127 enemy troops and captured nine in the biggest battle in more than a year on the coastal strip known as the "Street Without Joy." Nine South Vietnamese were killed and a U.S. adviser and 33 government troops were wounded.

Associated Press correspondent Jay Sharbutt reported from Hue that a North Vietnamese battalion of about 200 men seized three pacified hamlets eight miles southeast of Quang Tri. Government militiamen first engaged the enemy. They were reinforced by a 600-man armor and infantry force from the 1st Division.

Sharbutt reported that the remnants of the North Vietnamese battalion had split up and slipped out of the area.

Government military officers said their forces captured 47 rifles and 12 heavy weapons in a sweep of the area.

The U.S. Command's weekly casualty summary Thursday listed 104 Americans killed and 802 wounded in action last week. A total of 42,858 U.S. troops have been killed in action in Southeast Asia since Jan. 1, 1961, and 282,503 have been wounded. Also 1,453 are listed as missing or captured.

South Vietnamese casualties last week were put at 307 killed, 1,607 wounded and six missing, the lowest toll since mid-February.

Allied headquarters claimed 1,474 enemy killed last week, bringing to 653,675 the total reported killed in the war.

Apartment Owner Says Policy Misunderstood

... NEVER MEANT 'FOR LOW-INCOME PEOPLE'

An owner of the Crescent Garden Apartment Complex at 23rd and Vine told Human Rights Commission that the apartments "were never intended from the start to be for low-income people."

Norvan Holverson, one of the partners in the development of the apartment complex — involved in recent racial incidents — said the original plan was that the apartments would be for university people, especially married couples.

Holverson said people in the Malone area were told at the time of construction that the apartment complex was to be university-oriented.

Background
He had been asked to appear before the commission to explain the background of the apartment complex.

"There seems to be a whole lot of misconceptions about it," noted Chairman Kenton Williams, who asked most of the questions.

Rumors had circulated around the Malone area that the apartment complex was intended to be for low income. Residents were reportedly angered and frustrated when the apartments were rented to university students.

Incidents of name calling and rock throwing had occurred involving the black community and university students, leading up to a racial incident in May.

Commission members said they hoped from the Thursday meeting to learn what they could do to prevent similar incidents happening in the future.

Report Needed
The need for good communications between the developer and the area residents was stressed.

Holverson said he talked to so many persons in the area that "there should have been a fair amount of communications."

Regarding the purchase of land in the general area by private enterprise, he said that "so far as I know, there was not one case of any undue pressure, dishonesty, or deceitfulness by anyone."

Commission member Mike Alessio recommended that private enterprise stay out of the area for awhile until the present unrest settles down.

In other business, Williams urged that the present human rights officer Gerald Hendersen be taken out of the planning department and placed as "an identifiable person" in city government, probably as a separate office. He also named a committee to form a budget for the human rights office.

Keifers' July 4th Display Is 85-Year-Old Tradition

By DEAN TERRILL
Southeast Nebraska Bureau

Bostwick — An 85-year-old Fourth of July tradition will light up the skies this Saturday high above Oswin Keifer's ranch.

If things go as usual, the annual family fireworks will draw at least a couple thousand "neighbors." That's about 1,900 more than when Keifer's father started the event — but otherwise the celebration has changed very little.

"There are a lot more spectators now and they come by car rather than spring wagons," said the sponsoring Nuckolls cousin, 76. "In the old days Mother served cookies and lemonade, but the thing has gotten a bit big for that."

The ranch's three generations of Keifers do pass out sparklers, however, among the cars on surrounding road sides. The ensuing antics are almost as enjoyable as the aerial bombs, Roman candles and pin wheels of the main shoot off.

Many Strangers
Although most of the carloads are from Nuckolls and surrounding counties, some regulars are known to drive 100 miles for the hour-long display.

Many are strangers who have neither met the Keifers nor heard their stories of the event's early days.

Often recounted privately is the time when a mother, stumbling in the darkness, laid her sleeping babe in the wrong wagon. Later the child's cries surprised a home-bound family and prompted a seven-mile return trip to greatly relieved parents.

"Actually it's a modest display we have, not a big thing, but we do have a good time," said Keifer. "That's part of the purpose, and though it sounds corny I guess patriotism is too. This country has been awfully good to us."

The Keifers in return have sent at least one family member to the nation's every major war since the Civil War. That tradition started with Oswin's grandfather, J. Warren Keifer, a general in both the Civil and Spanish American Wars. A native of Ohio, he also served as speaker in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Oswin and older brother Joe, a resident of nearby Bostwick, who'll help light the fireworks, both were in World War I. Oswin Jr., now of Omaha, was in World War II and his son, David, is presently with the army in Washington.

Oswin's other son, Bob, has helped host the Fourth of July visitors for several years. He, his wife and four children also reside at the ranch, just south of Bostwick.

The senior Keifer's father, J. Warren Jr., had started the ranch in 1883, choosing an attractive site above the Republican River. A huge barn, built 19 years later, is still an area landmark.

The surrounding countryside, incidentally, provided hundreds of Indian artifacts for Oswin's collection — one of the state's finest.

"One problem we no longer have with the fireworks," said the congenial oldster. "The sky rockets used to scare the horses and there were a few runaways. That hasn't happened for years."

Charges Are Filed In Traffic Death

Deputy Lancaster County Atty. Bernie J. McGinn said Thursday he filed a motor vehicle homicide complaint in County Court against John C. Engstrom of St. Paul, Minn.

Engstrom was the driver of a car involved in a car-motorcycle accident Sunday in which Earle W. Schweiger II, 24, of 2332 Orchard was critically injured. Schweiger died Thursday of injuries received in that accident.

McGinn said the complaint will carry a misdemeanor charge.

The accident occurred Sunday on No. 56th near Superior Ave.

A motor vehicle homicide charge can be either a felony or misdemeanor under a law passed by the 1969 legislature, McGinn said.

Born in Grand Island, Mr. Schweiger attended the University of Nebraska and worked as a computer programmer for the state.

He is survived by his wife, Catherine, a son, Earle W. III, at home, parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earle W. Schweiger Sr. of Grand Island, and a brother, Robert A. of Kearney.

Memorials may be sent to the University of Nebraska Foundation, computer science dept., University of Nebraska.

Wheat Yields Better Than Expected

By GLENN KREUSCHER
Farm Editor

What is a happy surprise for many Nebraska farmers may be a further substantiation that developing new wheat varieties by the University of Nebraska and private seed companies may be contributing a great deal in extra wheat yields for farmers.

With the wheat harvest all but completed in southeastern Nebraska and moving ahead of schedule on west, the reports of better than expected yields continue to be reported.

A week ago crop observers said it would be difficult to tell just what was going to happen on wheat yields. But as the combines moved into fields the reports became more favorable.

"The best we have reported is 76 bushels per acre from a field of Scout 66 wheat in York County," said Howard Elm, secretary of the Nebraska Grain and Feed Dealers Association.

Elm says there isn't any question about the extra value of the newer wheat varieties developed to stand more stress of weather and disease.

'Tribute To Program'

"In the same area where you find the 50, 60 and up to 70 bushel yields you can find some of the older variety wheats or some of the experimental hybrid types making only 30 bushels per acre. It is a real tribute to the wheat breeding program at the University of Nebraska," said Elm.

Elm said that in addition to some good yields the general quality of the wheat was better than average with a good protein content of 12 to 12.5% found quite generally over an eight county area in southeastern Nebraska.

He also noted that test weights have ranked high with many reports continuing to come with a test of 61 to 62 pounds per bushel. Sixty pounds per bushel is considered the equivalent of a bushel of wheat.

Jefferson County Extension Agent Neil Dawes said reports up to 70 bushels per acre have been received from the Fairbury area.

Several varieties of wheat expected to outperform varieties now used by wheat farmers will be released to certified seed producers this fall, according to reports from the University of Nebraska.

The sad part of the wheat harvest, farmers say, is the price as many farmers collect checks for less than the estimated production price per bushel, according to University of Nebraska research on cost of production.

During the past 40 years farmers have received from 50 cents per bushel in 1930 to 34 cents in 1931 and then a build up to $2.23 in 1947 and a stretch of years in the late '40s and into the 1950s where wheat sold more than $2.00 per bushel to the national average of $1.22 in 1968 and now the current market price in eastern Nebraska of $1.21 per bushel.

Thieves Enter York Co. Offices; Near $75 Missing

York (P) — Thieves took advantage of the noon-hour closing of offices on the third floor of the York County Courthouse Wednesday and broke into the office of Sheriff Lewis Ekart and from there into the office of County Atty. Joseph McCluskey.

Authorities said they had no clues as to the identity of the thieves, but they had used a pry of some sort to force open the door of Ekart's office. There was evidence they tampered with the safe in the sheriff's office but no attempt was made to force the safe. It contained about $600.

From the sheriff's office they went through an unlocked door to the county attorney's office and took about $75 from a desk. The money represented cash brought in to redeem insufficient fund checks.

While other offices in the courthouse are open during the noon hour all offices on this floor are closed and there was no one in any of the third floor offices.

Offer Refused By Glaziers

Omaha (P) — A contract proposal between the Om-Lin-Co Association of eight glazier contractors in Omaha, Lincoln and Council Bluffs, Iowa, and the Glaziers and Glass Workers Union Local 573 has been rejected on a 67-15 vote by the 107-member union.

The local began a strike Wednesday and announced plans to post pickets at five contractors' offices. The rejected proposal would have raised wages from $5.05 per hour by 65 cents an hour immediately; 35 cents per hour next Jan. 1; and increases equal to 96% of the average wage of 22 Omaha building trade unions on July 1, 1971, and 100% of that average on July 1, 1972.

Creighton Tops Campaign Goal

Omaha (P) — There are joyful people at Creighton University. The institution's drive to raise $17.5 million in donations in the Omaha area has been exceeded by nearly $1 million. An announcement of the total came from happy campaign workers and university officials.

Mrs. Grant Dies; Had 135 Descendants

A life-long resident in the Raymond and Sumner area, Mrs. Martha Grant, died Wednesday, leaving behind her a large number of descendants.

Included in her immediate family were four sons, eight daughters, 57 grandchildren and 66 great-grandchildren.

Mrs. Grant was 90 years old and resided in the Westside Nursing Home in Lexington, at the time of her death.

EVENTS

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Things don't always go bad, despite the seemingly endless problems which plague people. This week, two people were given a waiver of setback requirements by the Zoning Board of Appeals. Both setbacks, one for the side yard and one for the rear yard, were for garages.

In both cases, the required setbacks would have meant no garage but the board relented and let the construction proceed. Generally, very little space is involved in such things, usually a foot to two feet, but that is enough to create a major hangup.

The world is full of such things, situations where even another inch or two would make a big difference. This is particularly true of garages which, three years ago, were not built for the big cars that are on the market today. It's nice to know that, sometimes, such small problems are so easily solved.

We had a visit this week with a man from California. In the relatively small town in which he lives, a major national industry is considering locating its headquarters there. But the City Council is up tight over annexation.

It will not grant the needed zoning for the industry, our friend explained, unless the company agreed that it should be annexed to the city. As you might expect, our friend thinks the city is wrong, should give the zoning to get the industry regardless of annexation.

It is a familiar song. We have faced similar situations here time after time. In the past, Gateway Shopping Center and its environs have been a hot subject of debate. But now, Gateway has all the land it owns zoned for business development.

Additionally, land beyond the Gateway complex has been zoned for business and the entire area along O from Corner to 70th will soon be a major retailing complex. Gateway is evidence of the fact that most things are possible if you simply stick with them long enough.

Zoning, however, is only one part of a city's operations. This week in Lincoln, the City Council refused to reinstate in the 1970-71 budget funds for hiring a man to set up an urban renewal program in Lincoln.

Councilman Ervin E. Peterson said that this would just be the foot in the door for another multiplication of city operations. He is right, of course, but that doesn't make it bad.

The urban renewal program would be in the Planning Department but it won't happen this year as things now stand. Lincoln is actually short-sighted in not going ahead with the modest program recommended by Planning Director Douglas Brogren.

Involved is a $14,000 request to cover personnel needed to study urban renewal prospects for Lincoln. It is possible that we would not want urban renewal but to refuse to even look at it makes very little sense.

Lincoln is not in desperate need of urban renewal but it is a program that could keep things that way. Approached with intelligence and restraint, urban renewal could be a vital factor in the future of the city and its people.

Both the public and private sectors of the economy work in a number of ways toward urban renewal ends but with considerably different motivation. Whatever urban renewal you get in the natural course of decay and regeneration is purely an accident.

If something new replaces something very old, we have, in effect, practiced urban renewal. But that is not the same thing as planned renewal.

Urban renewal has a bad name in some areas, a good name in others. It can be made to work effectively, fairly and with a minimum amount of hardship or suffering on the part of anyone. Certainly, it would be an expansion of city government but it could be the best investment we ever made.

Elephant-Hair Collar Will Choke Old Dad

NEW YORK — Comes now a bit of fatherly advice from a mostly unlikely source: those elegant male designers who're dishing out Old Dad keep warning him nothing widens the generation gap faster than skinny ties and white shirts.

How can he expect the kids to "communicate" with an old fogie who still wears those tacky, old "things," for heaven's sake.

It shows he's not tuned in, for one thing. If Pop can't even appreciate the "social significance" of ocell bottoms, how can he dig what the New Generation is saying?

This is the message the boutique boys from the Champs Elysee and Madison Avenue and the Sunset Strip are trying to shove down Pop's throat. Fling on a little fringe . . . and, voila! instant understanding.

They're all in this together: Oscar de la Renta, Don Loper, Dior and such. They've already launched a sexy sex campaign. Now they're working on getting Old Dad into those groovy new undershorts that come in "decorator colors."

Nobody mentions anything as grubby as money, you understand. Their concern for the middle-aged mod (to hear them tell it, anyway) is to bring all those old fuds into the exciting new world of the avant garde. It is, they flutter, so "relevant."

Well, maybe. Maybe Sonny WILL prove more receptive to pearls of wisdom dropped by a father who sports mutton-chop face fuzz (even if it's white) and the latest in silver-coin belts stretched across his middle-aged pot. (And if he has a bracelet to match, that's groovy, man!)

But most of us from the Then Generation have a sneaky hunch the kids might be overcome with a bad case of giggles. And as long as those allowance checks keep coming, they probably couldn't care less what color the old man's undershorts are.

Then there are those hallowed father-son talks out in the garage, where they dig into the jargon of innards and rap about the birds 'n' bees. (Or am I showing my age? Is it the Pill and pot now?)

It's hard to believe an awareness of these grease-smears sessions could filter up to the haute couture salons. But, sure enough, the boutique boys have even condescended to crash the blue jean market.

However (and this will come as a surprise to practically nobody), their jeans aren't blue. Pastel pink and yellow, maybe. Splashed with spring flowers, you bet. But blue? Perish the thought.

Don't you wish you'd thought of it yourself? Any fool can see that Old Dad can defend Agnew's speeches better with jonquil jeans stretched across his backside.

Chokes you up, just to think about it, doesn't it? Well, now that we're on the subject, that's next: chokers for men.

I am not making this up. The boys are now pushing velvet (or bead) chokers with (for the ultimate in Adam's apple chic), a jeweled pin to set them off. And let the Duchess of Argyle gnash her teeth over THAT.

If this doesn't turn Old Dad on, he can take up the dog-collar fad. Just follow the other "swingers" into any canine supply store . . . pick up a nail-studded leather number . . . and be a trendsetter.

If you want a custom job, one designer has a model made of knotted elephant hairs—with (so help em!) three white fur ermine tails dangling from the clasp.

The leash, I guess, is extra. And if the lady libs are behind this, they've finally gone too far.

An Override With Merit

The Nebraska congressional delegation to the contrary, the Senate and House have both over-riden the President's veto of a $2.7 billion hospital construction bill. Nebraska Senators Carl Curtis and Roman Hruska have been busy telling constituents why the bill is bad.

The bill does have some liabilities. It tends to promote inflation by providing the President with more funds than he thinks prudent for the program and requiring that he spend them all.

Also, the bill does not recognize the President's efforts to shift the medical facilities program toward one of clinics with more minimal care. Depending upon your point of view, it is an asset or a liability that the program continues grants instead of the loans advocated by the President.

But the weight of things falls heavily in favor of the bill and the congressional override.

The fact that some other kinds of medical facilities might be needed does not destroy the fact that many areas of the nation still are in desperate need of first-class hospital facilities.

And when it comes to inflation, we can't see medical facilities as the place to do battle. If poor health is the price we have to pay for inflation, the cure would be worse than the disease. Inflation is not an argument that can be used legitimately to scuttle every political program with which you disagree.

Both Hruska and Curtis have worked to include some Hill-Burton hospital grant funds in other legislation but they are consistently favoring ends and arguing with means. In this way, they appear to favor programs that have appeal but work toward killing them. They are right in there most of the time with those who want the new church but can't agree on where to put it.

Birchers Reappear

The people who hear footsteps have reappeared on the political stage in California.

Two Republicans from solidly Republican districts in suburban Los Angeles this week won special election victories which make them the only acknowledged members of the ultra-conservative John Birch Society in Congress. Both fill out the unexpired terms of two veteran conservative members of the House of Representatives who died this year and both will be running for election to full terms in November.

John Rousselot, former national publicity director for the society and a former one-term congressman, and John Schmitz, a California legislator, won by margins of more than two to one in elections dignified by small voter turnouts. Rousselot defeated Myrlie Evers, widow of Medgar Evers, the Mississippi civil rights leader who was assassinated in 1963.

Senate Hits President With A Double Punch; Fact Of Defeat Itself Is Politically Damaging

WASHINGTON — Seldom if ever has a president suffered the sort of one-two punch with which the Senate smote Mr. Nixon on Tuesday—passing the Cooper-Church amendment on Cambodia and overriding the President's veto of the health aid bill, 76 to 19.

(To be fair, the Senate on the same busy day also gave Nixon postal reform which was a good piece of work, but by no means good enough to balance the President's score against the other two votes).

In the first place, defeat has its own kind of damaging impact, aside from the substance of the issue. In vetoing hospital construction money, Nixon almost surely miscalculated, for instance, the temper of Congress; or, if he didn't, he recklessly diminished the political power of his veto by expending it in a hopeless cause. Either way, the defeat is bound to have lessened the wary political respect in which a Congress, for the best results all around, ought to hold a president; and in Nixon's case, there was already far too little such respect going for him on Capitol Hill.

The Cooper-Church amendment was an even more serious blow, struck as it was in the foreign policy area, where every president since World War II has been able to operate with almost unchallenged authority. Again, aside from the substance of the amendment, the fact of defeat is damaging; despite his sustained opposition to the amendment, during which he even invoked the almost mystical notion of "the powers of the presidency," Nixon was unable to prevail. And in this case, the ineptitude of White House opposition made things worse.

Despite the lesson of the first amendment of Sen. Robert Byrd, for instance, the Nixon forces repeated the mistake of backing a loser. The Byrd amendment, watering down the Cooper-Church proposal, had tacit White House approval, if not outright endorsement, but still was defeated days ago. Then, the last stages of the battle, Sen. Robert Griffin produced another watering-down amendment, this one to permit the administration to pay for Thai or other foreign troops fighting in Cambodia. The minority leader, Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, said on the Senate floor that its adoption would go far toward removing Nixon's objections to the whole Cooper-Church rider. The Senate nevertheless voted down the Griffin amendment, too.

Scott's statement in support of the Griffin amendment strongly suggests that Nixon also has been hurt by the substance of the Senate's action. If authority to pay for foreign troops fighting in Cambodia would have substantially removed the administration's objection to the Cooper-Church rider, then it is plain that providing a proxy army — probably Thai — to support the Lon Nol govern-

The Game Of Patience

MOSCOW — The best guess is that this coming decade will mark a strategic period during which Russia and China both prepare for a possible showdown but that there will be no outbreak of either war or peace between them. Each side wants to buy time.

Informed opinion here seems to divide accordingly: a majority thinks of possible conflict with China some day; a minority thinks of probable conflict; an even smaller minority thinks of certain conflict. Nobody seems unalterably convinced that harmony will be restored.

Nevertheless, there appears slight chance of major confrontation in the predictable future since such is rationally improbable. It is logical to reason that as Chinese nuclear power increases, Peking will grow more responsible — just as Washington and Moscow did.

Moreover, while Sino-Soviet relations are exceedingly bad, China's actions are more cautious than its vituperative words. Peking realizes it is still far too weak to attack the U.S.S.R. Moscow, on the other hand, sees a cancer growing but estimates there is ample time to try other approaches before any need to operate.

It cannot afford to start a conventional war with the Chinese, thus creating for itself a super-Vietnam. Although it has large forces opposite China, there are no signs of preparation for sustained limited war — no vital new roads or railways.

Any conflict would therefore have to be nuclear and tactical missiles are deployed in East Siberia and Moscow's Asian ally, the Mongolian People's Republic. However, Moscow knows nuclear war would bring disastrous consequences even if won. It would irreparably tarnish the Soviet Union's image and might risk uncontrollable holocaust.

Soviet analysts appear persuaded that China cannot pose any real military threat for perhaps ten years. China's main forces are held back from the frontier to be used if necessary in a people's war from rear positions. For its part, Moscow has established a new command area—the Central Asian Military District—along the border.

Preparations on both sides seem essentially defensive as each toys with other options. Thus Moscow has stimulated an anti-Chinese movement among the Turkmenian population of Sinkiang, once a Sino-Soviet Condominium but now ruled by Peking.

Communist party chief Leonid I. Brezhnev has sponsored an Asian collective security system, now stored in the Soviet icebox for emergency use. Still another option is Russia's initiative to explore warmer ties with Chiang Kai-shek's Taiwan regime.

In Southeast Asia Moscow is at a temporary disadvantage vis-a-vis Peking. Its influence in Hanoi has declined but it hopes North Vietnam will realize it is overextended and acknowledge the traditional danger of a strong China. Soviet leaders fulminate against America but have recently done nothing but watch and wait as the new Indochina campaign develops.

In Europe, Moscow really wants a deal with Bonn to free its hands in the East. Recent propaganda had claimed West Germany provided the technology for China's space shot but this line has ceased in order to help current talks.

Militarily, both Russia and China have been stockpiling for possible trouble. The U.S.S.R. has bought up high quality steel and rolled steel for vehicles, in West Germany, the United States and Japan. The need for defense priorities has been used as an excuse for decelerating economic progress.

Russia's own military-industrial complex stresses the Chinese danger as a reason for larger defense budgets. The threat of invasion from the West has lost credibility—as is evident from continued negotiations with Washington (SALT) and Bonn.

But the Soviet marshals, deprived of the catchword of a Western menace, stress the Eastern menace. Marshal Ivan I. Yakubovsky warns that China is preparing for war. Marshal Andrei A. Grechko calls for defenses in the East as strong as those in the West.

Logically speaking, real conflict between the two giants seems in the end unlikely. Russia, the stronger power, doesn't want it and China shouldn't. The big question is whether logic will prevail in this crucial matter.

While both sides seem ready to use the coming decade for preparation only, the issue may be decided if one employs that time more effectively than the other and then feels over-confident. What if Peking achieves a weapons breakthrough? Or Moscow makes a deal with Bonn? Or if either feels convinced it has reached a fundamental accord with Washington? Any sudden shift in the balance of forces that can now be extrapolated might wholly change the picture. Meanwhile, the name of the game is patience.

Complex Operation Of Alaskan Oil

NORTH SLOPE ALASKA — The sums involved in the recovery, transportation and sale of the state's great oil strike are hard to digest.

The leases brought $900 million to the state. The companies involved want to build a $1.5 billion pipeline snaking 800 miles from Prudhoe Bay, here in the Arctic, to the relative warmth of Valdez, South Alaska. Through its 48-inch diameter, widest known pipe outside of Siberia, would tumble two million barrels of crude every day.

The crude is ready to tumble, but not an ounce has gone into your car's tank. And it may be a long time before you personally tap this bonanza. Politics, lobbies, economics, geography, geology and maybe plain old-fashioned orneriness impede the development.

There it sits, or lurks, this incredible source of power that was so improbably born. It is the remains of countless trillions and trillions of fish that died and sank to the bottom of the ocean that covered most of Alaska millions and millions of years ago. Oil is found only where the oceans once were, or remain.

Recovering it on the North Slope is a job that would have given pause to the builders of the Pyramids, the Suez and Panama Canals, and the laying of the Atlantic cable.

But the engineering and financial problems are relatively simple compared to the political and ecological woes.

Secretary of the Interior Walter Hickel, the well-known memo-writer and former governor of Alaska, has held up issuing the right-of-way and construction permit for the $1.5 billion pipeline.

Small but apparently highly persuasive conservationist groups are holding up Hickel's okay. They also say that the needed pipeline road will scar the Last Frontier beyond repair, and, worse, open it to hunters, picknickers and beer drinkers.

But matters would not be solved necessarily if Hickel did come through today with a license to lay the pipeline over the largely federally owned terrain.

Seems that at the last moment of the recent legislature, the solons added a gimmick to their original promise to the oil companies that Alaska would build the needed $120 million road for the good of the state economy. Now, the state wanted assurance from the companies that if the pipeline permit were issued, they would repay the state the $120 million plus 7½ per cent interest. Also, the legislators added, the money would have to be repaid, plus interest, even if the road didn't follow the route best calculated to aid the laying of the pipeline. And, furthermore, the companies must pay for any such road even if the pipeline is never built. The companies screamed a rejection.

A special session has been called by Governor Keith Miller to try to unravel matters and, hopefully, quicken the day when two million barrels of crude will be coursing daily through the world's largest man-made vein.

Then there are, of course, the natives whose lands and trapping places the road and the pipeline might dissect. They want "in" on the enormous swag. Of course, only a handful of them will be in a bargaining position, thanks to the location of their holdings.

The companies spent millions with contractors who moved in heavy gear for the task ahead. The gear, $45 million of it, sits stranded in gravel pits today, unable to venture off that safe footing because of the muddy tundra. The companies are paying contractors $100,000 a day rental on the marooned machines.

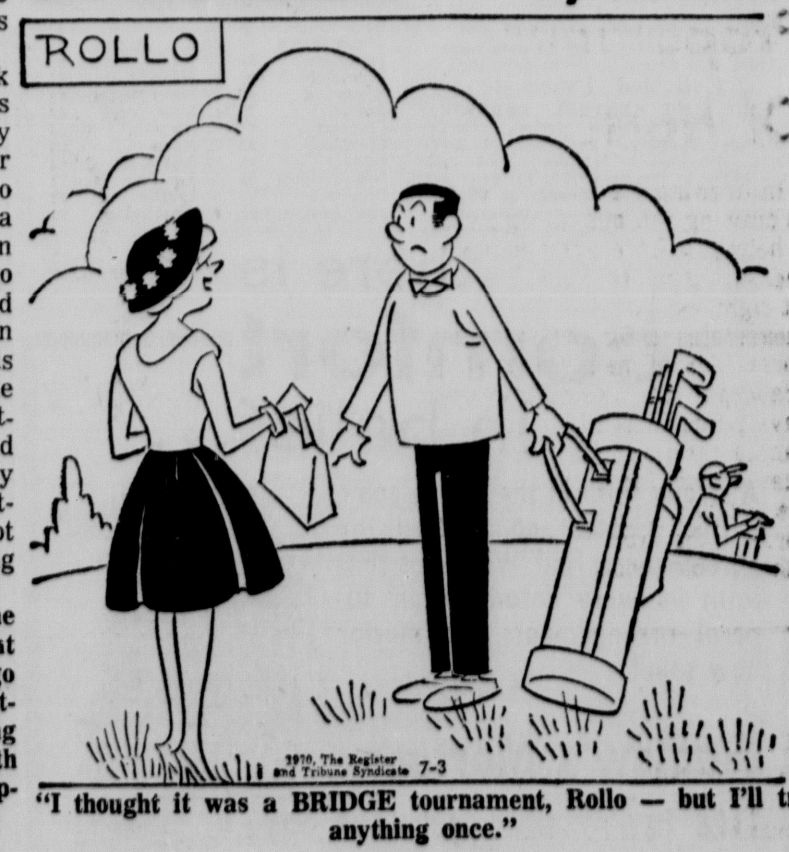

We visited a 1,000-foot-by-300-foot drilling "position" while here. Four capped wells, 100 feet apart, were there and the fifth and final well was being probed nearby. Though the well-heads are separated by only 100 feet, the holes themselves have been angled so that they are one mile apart at the 8,000-foot depth.

We asked how much this complex — not much bigger than a couple of football fields on the surface — had cost. "Eight million dollars," the man said.

That's $800,000 more than we paid Russia for all of Alaska. Dist. by King Features Synd.

Drawing Animals Difficult

By the Guiding Faculty of Famous Artists School Westport, Conn.

When you take up your pen or pencil to draw an animal you join an ancient and a great fraternity of artists. The oldest drawings on earth—drawings that are older than history itself—are pictures of animals. They were painted on the walls of caves in Europe by the artists of the Stone Age. Working with colors they made from minerals, with blacks made from burnt bones, these first artists painted bison and antelope, boars, and horses with a vigorous realism, economy of line, and freshness of style that are the envy of many of today's artists.

Animals have always had a special meaning for people. Since the day of the cave man, the animal has never ceased to be a leading subject in art, in every country and century. Animals have been the symbols of savage tribes and feudal lords, of kings and nations. They have been used as symbols of war and peace, crusades and famine, stubbornness, devotion, and wisdom.

For the man or woman who can draw and paint animals with skill, opportunities are particularly good because so many of today's artists, although competent in every other area, have never learned how to draw animals, and avoid jobs which call for them. Yet the subject is no more difficult than any other if you approach it with patience and a willingness to learn. There is a joy and a sense of achievement in drawing an eagle so that it really seems to be in flight—in portraying a massive buffalo pawing the ground or charging across the prairie—or a horse in all its strength and majesty.

Animals are exciting to draw—and it pays to know how to draw them.

Next week: Drawing domestic pet animals.

Pictorial Historian Sketches Horse And Rider

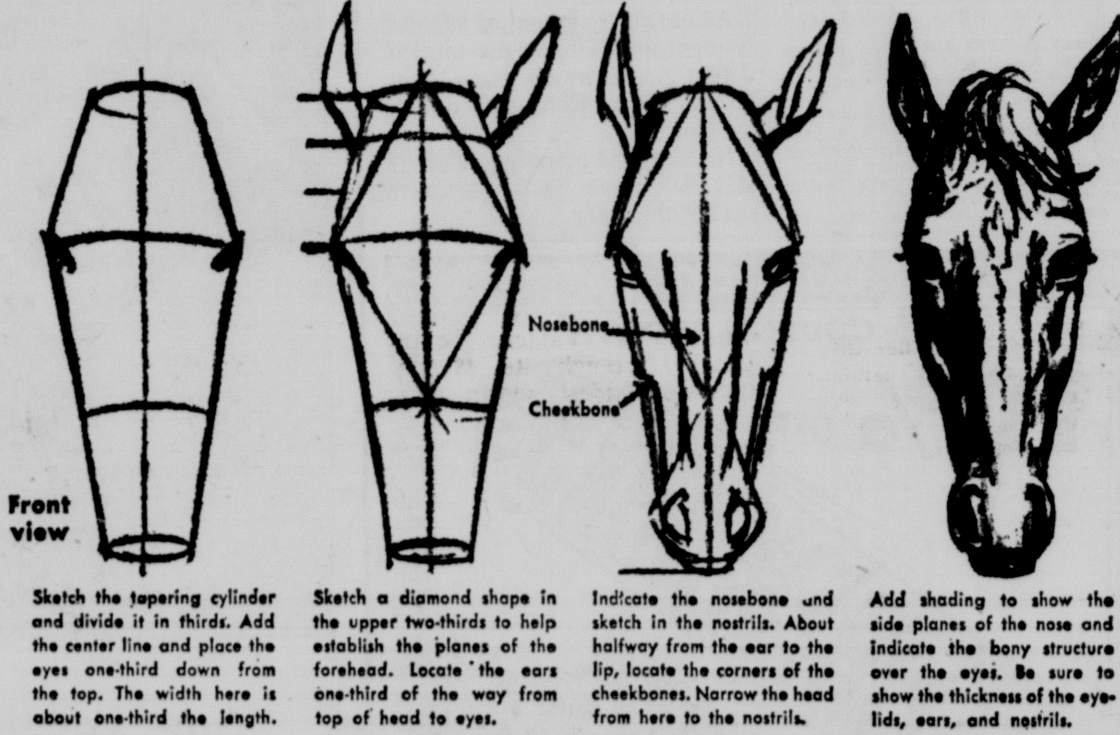

Frederic Remington, one of America's outstanding artists once described himself as a pictorial historian of the Old West. Few artists could portray a horse with such accuracy and action as he could.

Here is a color sketch by Remington of a U.S. cavalryman and his mount out on the plains. (From the "21 Club" Kriender Collection.)

Drawing Horse's Head

The simplest way to draw the horse's head is as a long cylinder shape, tapering at both ends. It is widest at the eyes and gets narrower at both top and bottom. The measurements at right will help you block in the forms and locate the features. Naturally, the exact shape and proportions will vary somewhat with different horses just as they do with people.

Side View Utilizes Tapered Cylinder

To draw the side view of a horse's head, start with a long tapering cylinder, adding cheekbone, the cheek and jaw curves, then details as shown below. To get the angle right, note that in the bottom drawing (showing proportions of the horse) the front line of the head is parallel, roughly, to the front of the shoulder blade, which is at about the same slant as a line through the 1 and 7 on a clock (or the 11 and 5) on a clock.

tions of the horse) the front line of the head is parallel, roughly, to the front of the shoulder blade, which is at about the same slant as a line through the 1 and 7 on a clock (or the 11 and 5) on a clock.

Begin with a long tapering cylinder with the top end cut off at the angle indicated. Divide the length in thirds, locating the eye as shown. The angle formed by the top line of the neck and face is just a little wider than a right angle.

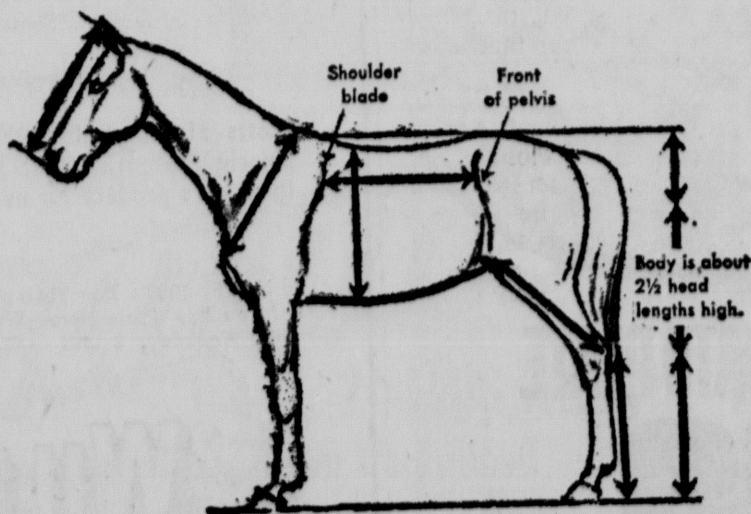

Sketch a line indicating the cheekbone below the eye as shown. Extend this line back too locate the bottom of the ear. The front of the ear joins the head one-third down from the top of the head to the eye.

Now sketch the curved disc shape of the cheek and jaw as shown. Divide the muzzle end of the head in thirds and sketch the nostril in the upper third and the lower lip and chin in the bottom third. Note how the head is narrowed just behind the chin.

Details of eyes, nostrils, and mouth are added. Use modeling to bring out the bone structure over the eye and the cheek bone beneath it. Notice the figure "6" shape of the nostril, and how the neck line curves under the jawbone.

Proportions Of Horse

In drawing the horse, just as in drawing the human figure, it is helpful to have a few standard measuring points to check from. At right we give you the basic measurements for an "average" horse. Most of the horses in your drawings and paintings will have proportions like this. You can easily make the necessary changes for other horses such as the heavily proportioned draft horse or the Arabian, which has a shorter backbone.

You can use the length of the head to check the measurements shown here (arrowed lines equal one head length).

Contract Okayed For Columbus Housing Project

Columbus (AP) — Columbus Mayor Barney L. Mick and Joe H. McKown, chairman of the Columbus Housing Authority, reported Thursday that the Department of Housing and Urban Development has approved a contract between the city and Seldin and Seldin, Inc.

of Omaha for construction of 100 housing units for the elderly. Construction of the project, which carries a contract price of more than $1.3 million, is expected to start soon and continue for a year. Applications from prospective occupants will begin being taken after Aug. 1.

Water Level Drop Reported In Atkinson, O'Neill Areas

Water levels in wells in the heavily pumped areas near Atkinson and O'Neill lowered significantly during 1969, according to a report recently published by the Conservation and Survey Division of the University of Nebraska.

The report, prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Geological Survey, describes the groundwater-level fluctuations in Nebraska during the past year.

The report indicates that the rate of lowering around Atkinson and O'Neill has been nearly two feet per year since 1965. Water levels also continued to lower in the irrigated area of Box Butte County near Alliance but the rate was only about one foot for the year.

In most of Nebraska, however, water-level changes in wells were insignificant and only 35 of the 93 counties ended 1969 with average water levels lower than the previous year. In the Blue River Basin, where much groundwater is pumped for irrigation, the water levels lowered less than normal and even rose in Adams, Clay, Fillmore, Saline and Seward Counties.

Water levels in wells also rose in large areas irrigated with stream and reservoir water. The largest rises occurred in Gosper, Kearney, and Phelps Counties, an area where water levels have risen more than 50 feet under about 200 square miles since 1942, and in some places have risen as much as 100 feet. Groundwater levels in Sherman and Howard Counties also continued to rise beneath land irrigated for seven years with water diverted from the Middle Loup River.

Water levels were higher than the preceding year in the heavily pumped Middle Platte River Valley. This slight rising trend began in 1963.

Water levels in wells are monitored continuously at 49 sites in Nebraska and are periodically observed at 480 other sites. Instruments at the 49 gauge sites plot graphs of the changes in levels of the water in the well.

$31,100 Gifts Termed Out Of Character By Supreme Court

By United Press International
The State Supreme Court Thursday said it was "out of character" for a rural Oshkosh farmer to give gifts amounting to $31,100 to two tenants and returned the case to Garden County District Court for trial.

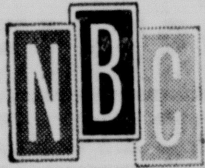

The action had been brought against the two tenants, Larry and Ezra Lynes, by a niece of the aged farmer Broder Paulsen.

National Bank of Commerce

Main Bank 13th & O Sts. / Patio Office 10th & O Sts. / Lincoln, Nebraska saying the pair obtained the money by taking advantage of his age and bad memory.

Justice Harry A. Spencer writing the high court decision, said "it would be so out of character for Paulsen to have materially reduced his substance by large and frequent gifts that we can reasonably infer they were either the result of undue influence, a breach of trust, or loans."

Had Opportunity

He further said "we find a confidential relationship did exist and that defendants (the Lynes) had every opportunity either to exert undue influence or to take advantage of a trust relationship."

In district court, the Lynes, father and son, had filed for a dismissal after niece Helen W. Molholm's evidence was presented and asked the court to uphold the concept the money was a gift and the court so ruled.

During the trial, witnesses testified Paulsen's memory failed at times, a condition that had existed since 1960.

Witnesses also testified that on several occasions, Paulsen wrote checks, or signed blank checks, to the Lynes and others and then didn't remember writing them.

The Lynes' told the high court, even though the district court proceeding was not a jury trial, the dismissal had the effect of a jury decision.

The high court affirmed this but said in dismissal action, all evidence introduced is therefore assumed to be true. The court said the evidence showed there was "undue influence" on Paulsen.

The court further said there was "opportunity afforded designing persons for the exercise of improper control" of Paulsen and his money.

"Therefore, the burden of going forward" in proving the money had been a gift "shifts to the party seeking to sustain the checks as gifts," and returned the matter for full trial.

In other decisions, the court:

—Reversed and dismissed an appeal from Douglas County District Court in a case involving Lyle A. Lydick and the State Motor Vehicles Department.

The department revoked a drivers license belonging to Lydick, for failure to take an alcohol content test without showing sufficient cause.

Lydick appealed to the district court and filed a $200 bond with the state, which was turned down by the state auditor and the district court allowed an amended bond to be filed after he legal 20-day limit.

The high court's decision reversed the district court ruling allowing the amended bond, and any appeal of the revocation.

—Affirmed a Douglas County District conviction of William E. Agnew for burglary saying there was no miscarriage of justice shown since either the conviction of an earlier Supreme Court decision upholding that conviction.

Washington (UPI) — The Department of Justice's law enforcement agency has approved a $701,000 grant to the Nebraska Commission on Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice, Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb., announced.

An earlier payment of $609,000 brought to $1,310,000 the total of action funds which have been provided for Nebraska during the year.

Hruska said planning funds of $211,000 were also granted earlier this year.

New GARDEN MAUSOLEUM

Last fall, plans were announced to build Nebraska's first Garden Mausoleum in the restful surroundings of Lincoln Memorial Park. Construction was scheduled to begin in 1971.

The favorable response expressed by families from all walks of life has been little short of overwhelming. As has been the case from the beginning of civilization, there are many people today who have registered a strong preference for the dignity of mausoleum interment as a means of honoring their loved ones.

Consequently, construction of Lincoln Memorial Park's magnificent Garden Mausoleum has been rescheduled. It's under way now, with the first unit scheduled for completion before the end of 1970. Like majestic monuments such as the Pyramids of Egypt, The Taj Mahal in India and London's Westminster Abbey, it will be built to endure the elements and ravages of time so as to provide a lasting memorial to those whose remains it protects in clean, dry, ventilated crypts. Yet, due to modern technology, the cost of interment will compare favorably with ground burial.

If, like so many others, the distinct advantages associated with mausoleum interment have special appeal to you, we invite you to send for the full color brochure describing our soon to be constructed Garden Mausoleum. Simply complete and mail the coupon below.

Frontier Expects CAB Approval Of Proposed Air Service Cutback

By TIM AHERN
Associated Press Writer
E. Paul Burke, president of Frontier Airlines, said Thursday he expects the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) to grant Frontier's request to drop one round trip daily to four Nebraska cities.

However, Burke revealed in a telephone interview, he expects the service to Chadron, Alliance, Sidney, and Columbus to be restarted next Jan. 1.

The airline — the only air carrier to 10 of 13 Nebraska cities — had asked the CAB to drop the round trips as of July 1 because, said Frontier, it was losing too much money.

CAB approval is necessary because board agreements with Frontier require two round trips daily to the cities and the requested cutback, if approved, would mean the four cities would be served once a day.

No Response
Burke predicted the CAB wouldn't take action until fall, even though the request was to be effective July 1. He reported the airline has so far had no response from the board on the petition which was made several weeks ago.

"I would certainly think the board would approve our request," said Burke. "We lost $4.7 million last year and $7.4 million the year before."

However, he went on, "we have agreed that if federal subsidies to the airlines are raised so that we make the break even point on these flights, then we'll restore the service as of next Jan. 1."

As for an increase in federal subsidies, Burke said he is "convinced Congress will act to raise the subsidies."

He explained that in order for the Frontier flights to reach the break-even point, the airline's present subsidy "would have to be doubled."

"I think that in the next months," he said, "we'll see favorable action by the CAB and Congress on the subsidies. Using the CAB formulas, we've provided them with data that show our need for the subsidies to be doubled."

Burke said he realized persons in the affected cities were concerned, "but," he went on, "it's a matter of economics. We're losing a lot of money on the flights."

"All we're asking is that Congress allow us to break even on the trips. We're not asking to show a profit."

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplane

A couple of firecrackers went off this morning — pop! pop! When the dog and I went out to investigate, a couple of small boys were hurrying up the street to get out of range.

Firecrackers are a little illegal these days. Can't buy them in our part of the country. Only a few of us unreconstructed rebels left. The guerrillas against the Safe and Sane Fourth of July.

When I was lighting fuses, the world had yet to become safe and sane and nuclear. Small boys (and some grown men) blew themselves up by the dozens. The Fourth was glorious and smoke-powdered. A casualty list was printed on the Fifth. "Blown to smithereens!" said grandma reading the morning paper. "Gone to glory!"

Firecrackers were quite legal then. The Fourth opened at daylight with a blast of crackers—bang! bang! bang! Dogs all over town headed underneath the house. On the courthouse lawn they loaded the memorial cannon. Alongside the green-iron statue of the Union soldier, leaning forever on his green-iron rifle. Set in the courthouse wall were the names: "Who gave their lives for the glory..."

My grandfather said: "Here, give me a couple of those big crackers and stand back." He lit one with his cigar and threw it—wham!

He said: "You get more noise if you put a tin can over them."

All I can get around here are sparklers. We thought sparklers were girls' stuff when I was swinging on a gate.

The test of courage was how long you held on while the fuse went fzzzzzzzz.

With the little ones you could—if you had the nerve—hold one until they went pop! You pinched the end between your finger and thumb so it didn't burst through the back.

Grandma said: "Don't get powder-burned. That's the way you get lockjaw."

I said: "What's lockjaw, grandma?"

She said: "Your jaw locks up and they have to pry it open with a crowbar."

On July 3, 1776 John Adams wrote to Mrs. Adams about July 4: "It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations."

He didn't mention firecrackers for there were no firecrackers then. If there had been, I imagine John would have put them on the list.

We can't fire a gun in this county. And bonfires have been banned—it adds to air pollution.

Of course I must say the moppets are safer than we were. No risk of blowing off a finger. Unsafe and insane days, but a powerful lot of glory. Bang!

MISS CATHERINE BOURLIER

Park Manor
Southwood
Meadow Lane

in the suburban areas

One excellent way to "beat the heat," which inevitably accompanies the arrival of July in the state of Nebraska, is to keep busy — or so Lincoln's suburban residents have discovered.

Activity in the form of entertaining visitors will be especially in evidence this holiday weekend, and among the many families planning to roll out the red carpet are Meadow Lane residents Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Baker and children, Molly, Karen and Dennis.

Arriving in Lincoln on Friday will be Mr. Baker's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Baker; and his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Baker and children, Connie, David and Matthew, all of Manhattan, Kan. The Lloyd Baker family will return to Kansas on Sunday, while Mr. Baker's parents will remain in Lincoln for an extended visit.

Fourth of July festivities in the Southwood area will involve all of the residents of that particular neighborhood. The fun is scheduled to commence at 1 o'clock when the VFW Post No. 131 Color Guard and Children's Marching Band will lead a parade through the neighborhood. Included among the enthusiastic participants will be quite a number Southwood youngsters.

At 5 o'clock residents will enjoy a special treat — a pit barbecue which, we understand, will be followed by a traditional display of fireworks.

Recently returning to Lincoln following a nine-day vacation in Arkansas were Park Manor residents Mr. and Mrs. Ron Harris and sons, Michael and Scott. Mr. and Mrs. Harris began the trip alone, and the first stop on their traveling itinerary was Elkhart, Kan. where Michael and Scott were visiting with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Ingram.

From Elkhart, the Harris family continued on to Bull Shoals Lake, Ark. where they visited at the summer home of friends from Falls City. Mrs. Harris tells us that they especially enjoyed water skiing, swimming and fishing.

Heading westward last weekend for a vacation in Wyoming and Colorado were Mr.

and Mrs. Thomas Lamb and children Sandra, Peter and Sarah, who plan to spend two weeks sight-seeing and visiting with family members.

In Sheridan, Wyo., the Lincoln travelers will be guests at the home of Mrs. Lamb's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Wells, and from there they will continue on to Jackson Hole and Yellowstone National Park.

On their return trip, they plan to spend several days relaxing in the Estes Park, Colo. vicinity.

Last weekend was a very busy, and, we might add, a very exciting, one, for Miss Marilyn-Rae Price, daughter of Park Manor residents Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Price. Marilyn Rae returned to Lincoln with five trophies as a result of her participation in the National Open Baton Twirling competition and the Junior Miss Majorette of Nebraska Pageant, both of which took place in Omaha on Saturday.

Marilyn-Rae won third place in the Junior Miss Majorette Pageant, in which contestants were judged on the basis of poise and personality, as well as strutting and twirling ability. The young lady received four trophies for her participation in the National Open.

On hand in Omaha to give Marilyn-Rae encouragement were her parents and her brothers, Terry and Shaun.

Incidentally, Mrs. Price also tells us that Marilyn-Rae has been selected for mention in "Who's Who In Baton Twirling."

MISS EVELYN PENSICK

Announcement is made this morning by Mrs. Viola E. Pensick of the engagement and approaching marriage of her daughter, Evelyn, to Larry W. Helter, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Helter.

The wedding is planned for Saturday, July 25, and the ceremony will be solemnized at St. Mary's Church.

Miss Pensick is a graduate of the University of Nebraska and is a member of the Clinton School faculty.

Bridal Plans, Parties

July bride-elect Miss Christie Ann Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Reed, and her fiance John Arthur Rasmussen, Jr. were the guests of honor at a dinner party which took place on Tuesday evening, June 30, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Morrow.

On Thursday, July 2, Mrs. Don Cunningham entertained in pre-nuptial courtesy to Miss Reed when she is hostess for a luncheon which took place at her home. Mrs. Al Larson served as assistant hostess.

Miss Reed when she was hostess for a lunch at the University of Nebraska where she is affiliated with Delta Gamma sorority.

Her fiance, the son of Dr. and Mrs. John Arthur Rasmussen of Omaha is a graduate of the University of Nebraska College of Law. He is a past president of Phi Kappa Psi fraternity, and a member of Innocents and Phi Delta Phi law fraternity.

Attendants Named

Lincoln's many August brides-elect are finding their calendars increasingly filled with things to do as they attend pre-nuptial courtesies and make plans for their approaching weddings.

One soon-to-be bride who has chosen a Saturday, Aug. 1 date for her marriage to Dr. Richard M. Hodgetts, is Miss Sara Fontana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Emilio Fontana. This morning Miss Fontana is making announcement of the members of her bridal party.

For the 11 o'clock ceremony, which will be solemnized at St. Thomas Aquinas Church, Miss Fontana has named Miss Marguerite Soucek as her maid of honor and only attendant.

Fred Luthans will serve Dr. Hodgetts as best man; and Tim Sernett of Lawrence, Iowa will be ring bearer.

Dr. Hodgetts is the son of Herald Thomas Hodgetts of Long Island, N.Y., and the late Mrs. Hodgetts. He received his Ph.D. from the University of Oklahoma at Norman, and he is currently a faculty member in the University of Nebraska College of Business.

Bridge: quiz day

B. Jay Becker

You have the following hand, both sides vulnerable:

♠AKQ7 ♥93 ♦Q65 ♣AJ42

1. You are the dealer. What do you bid?
2. Your partner deals and bids One Diamond, next player passes. What do you bid?
3. Your left-hand opponent bids One Diamond, your partner passes, and your right-hand opponent bids One Heart. What do you bid?
4. Your partner deals and bids One Heart and the next player doubles. What do you bid?
5. Your partner deals and bids One Heart, you respond One Spade, and partner bids Three Diamonds. What do you bid?
6. Your left-hand opponent bids One Club, your partner passes, and the next player bids One Spade. What do you bid?

and the hand is not quite good enough for that. Change a heart into a spade or a diamond and you would then have a classic two spade response. One spade is 100% forcing.

3. Double. This indicates the values for an opening bid and support for the two unmentioned suits. It would be wrong to bid a spade. That would show greater spade length and much less in high cards.

4. Redouble. This identifies 10 or more points. You intend to either bid game eventually or double the opponents for penalties.

5. Four clubs. A small slam is already certain, since partner's jump-shift announces at least 20 points, distributional or otherwise. The real goal is a grand slam. Four clubs is a waiting bid to force partner to reveal the nature of his jump-shift. He may have or similar holdings. You'll have to wait and see what he does over four clubs.

6. Pass. The value of a hand changes as the bidding progresses. Before the bidding started, you had a reasonable hope of finding partner with length in either spades or clubs, but that hope is now largely dissipated. The best strategy is to assume a defensive posture and hope the opponents get up too high.

August is rapidly beginning to rival June as a month of weddings, and on Friday, August 14, Miss Carolyn F. Brauckmuller will become the bride of Charles Chittenden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Chittenden of Grant, Mich.

Miss Brauckmuller, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Brauckmuller of Waverly, was graduated from the University of Nebraska, and is a member of Towne Club.

Honoring the bride-elect at a Tuesday evening party on June 16 were Mrs. Alan Hilt and Miss Lou Ann Hilt. During the evening, the guests presented Miss Brauckmuller with a miscellaneous shower.

a tour of the shops

For our tour of the shops this morning, we resisted the temptation to check out the latest in ice machines and decided, in spite of 100 degrees, to look into another summer pastime — sewing.

With the increasing prices of clothes, it seems more and more women are taking advantage of the opportunity to make many of their clothes. Now, even beautiful lingerie can be made for less than ready made.

At Brandeis we saw nylon tricot, lycra, matching lace and elastic which can be made into lovely panties, slips, bras, girdles, and night gowns. The tricot is 108 inches wide so just a small width of the fabric can be made into several pieces. The colors are yummy — soft pink, blue, yellow, green, white, beige and brown — all with lace and elastic to match. Stretch lace also is available for girdles. This lingerie, we were told, is very simple to make. Patterns for the items by Delores of St. Paul, are available in the fabric department on second floor. A zigzag stitch is used and polybond thread with a ball point needle on the machine and ball point pins are recommended. The tricot is available in 40 denier and also sheer in 15 denier.

Dupont has a new fashion fabric out — Qiana nylon — which looks like silk twill. This beautiful fabric at Brandeis is available in a wide variety of prints and is washable and non-wrinkle — just the thing for blouses!

In Brandeis we saw something new for the mod seamstress: wild belt buckles by Rapallo. There are all sizes and kinds from a tortoise-shell buckle six inches tall to small ornate types in antique gold and silver. We also saw some round medallion buckles and others done in wild stripes or geometric designs.

For the lazy seamstress, we saw the latest in iron-on convenience at Brandeis and also at Miller & Paine — Stitch-Witchery by Dritz. The witchery is spun in a strip of net, which, according to the package, can be used to iron on applique, facings and even zippers. The double-sticky net comes in varying widths.

Fabric designers are predicting rainy skies for this fall and as a result, fabrics are being "showered" with a revolutionary polyurethane bonding. The "wet look" material is practical and the patterns are wild. MILLER AND PAINE and TEN-TWENTY EIGHT FABRICS feature the fabric in wool-like rayon and nylon glen plaids and on shimmery acetate solids and snakeskins. Cloudy skies disappear when it comes to cleaning this material — it is completely machine washable.

Also at Miller and Paine's notion department one of the newest items we saw is a roller foot which attaches to all makes of sewing machines — both straight and zigzag. It's made for sewing knits to keep the material from pulling.

Iron-all is an attachment for any type of iron to permit ironing on the outside surface of any fabric—nylon, silk or wool without a shine.

For those of you making your own bathing suits, link closure bands are available for back attachment.

Ideal for the woman who hates to sew on buttons is the Buttoneer by Dennison. It attaches buttons without a needle and thread and is especially good with metal buttons.

Abby: honesty

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: You advised a flat-chested girl, "What nature has forgotten—stuff with cotton." That may be all right during the pursuit, but once they've agreed to matrimony, she should shed the artificiality. The poor guy may want a bosomy wife more than anything else in the world (an immature attitude, but many men are immature). The girl may have known this all along and deceived him with "falsies." If you think this is ridiculous, it isn't. I've seen it happen.

So on their wedding night when the bride is found to be wearing balloons full of jello, there's going to be trouble.

I agree, some things are better left untold, but when two people plan to enter a relationship as intimate as marriage, such "secrets" are bound to be found out.

I'm an old fashioned guy and I don't believe in rehearsals in bed before marriage, but I do think both parties should be completely honest about what is natural and what isn't before, as the young people say, the marriage is consummated.

TAFT

DEAR TAFT: I find your

"old-fashioned" attitude refreshing. However, not all girls wear falsies in order to deceive and entrap. (Some feel they look better in clothes with a few curves.)

No bride with a brain in her head would present herself as a truly bosomy babe right up to the wedding night and then "deflate" herself — and her disappointed groom. But if she did, she deserves to be left "flat."

Residents Criticize Street Name Change

By LIANE WETTERER
Star Staff Writer

Newly developed plans to change nearly all street names and house numbers in the Arnold Heights area has apparently met with considerable opposition from area residents.

The Lincoln Housing Authority Monday announced plans to acquire the housing area west of Lincoln Air Park

West from the federal government, providing the City Council approves the plat and community unit plans Monday.

Mrs. Jean Marshall, an Arnold Heights housewife and a community spokesman, says many residents have become confused by the new plans.

She pointed to the city's plan for renaming Walker Drive, for example.

Many Changes

According to Mrs. Marshall, the street winds through the area and the plan calls for "changing the street's name at nearly every bend or curve."

Mrs. Marshall says it starts out as West Benton St., then at N.W. Michael Circle (presently Michael Terrace) it changes to N.W. 54th St. At Wilkins Circle (presently Wilkins Terrace), the street's name changes to West Wilkins St.

Most of the changes seem rather insignificant, she pointed out.

"One of the main objectives seems to be to change all streets ending with 'Terrace' to instead end in 'Circle' or 'Northwest' is tacked onto the street name.

Another fairly consistent alteration comes with "throwing in numbered streets for all north-south streets," she added.

Honor Military Men

Mrs. Marshall noted that some residents feel the street names should not be changed at all. Many of the streets were originally named — 10 years ago — "in honor of military men who gave their lives for their country."

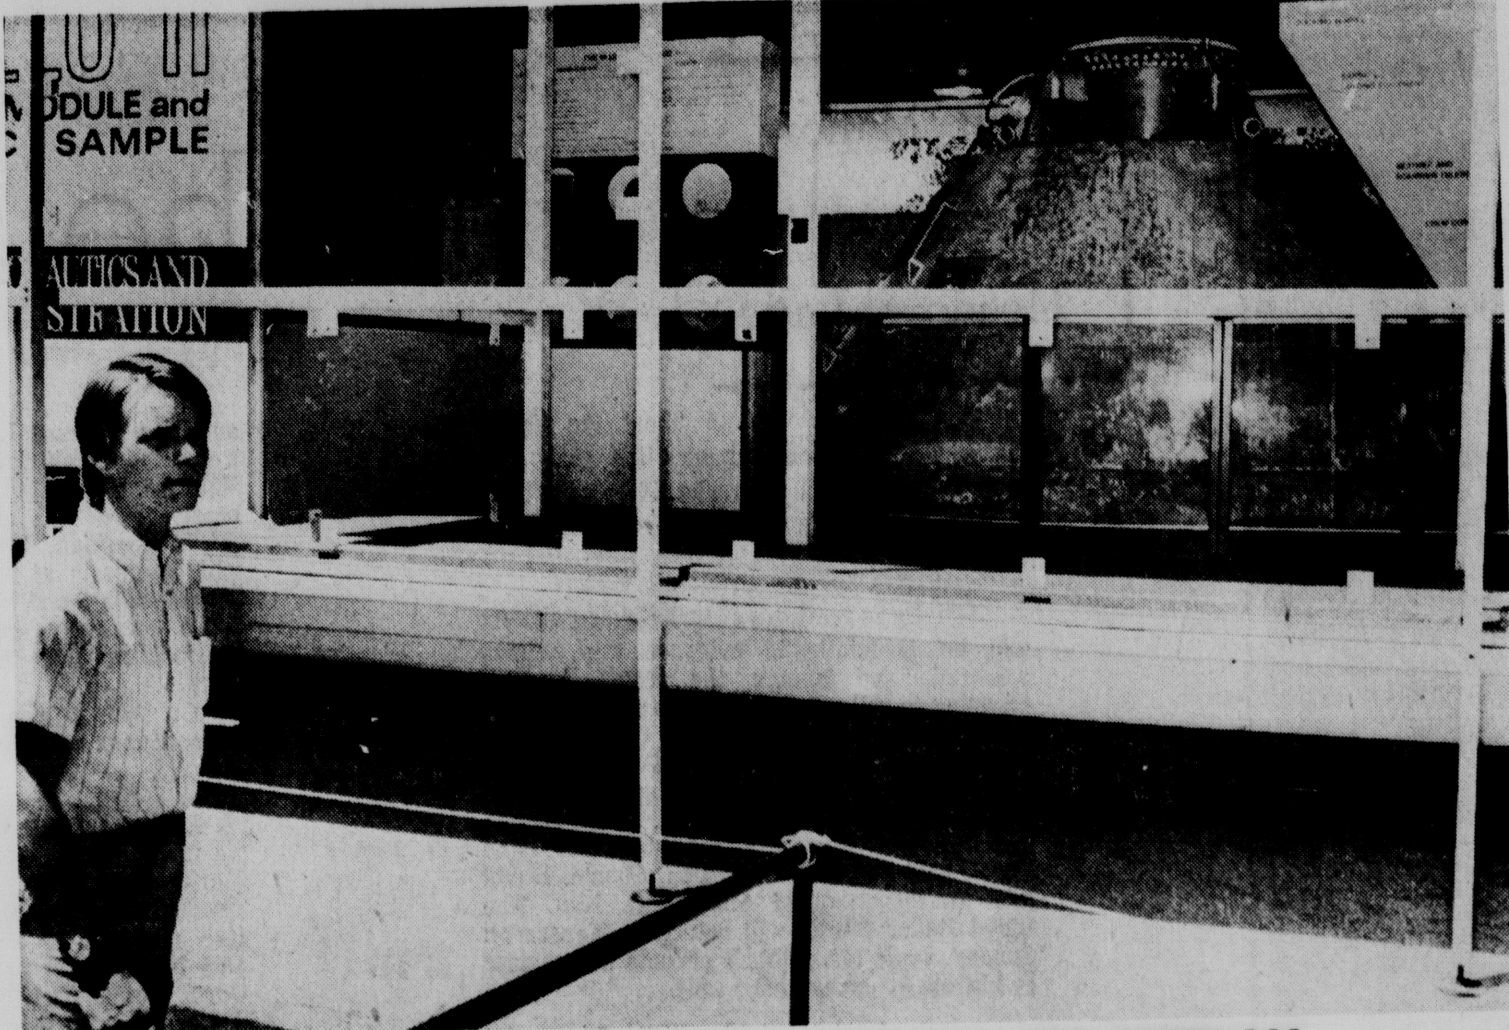

The people of Arnold Heights wonder, too, who will have to pay for all the new signs, and if they will have to change their legal addresses, even though they are living in the same houses.

Another possibility suggested was that public employees, such as postmen, firemen and policemen, would be confused by the proposed new system.

Verl Borg of the city planning department said either the city or the Lincoln Housing Authority would probably pick up the tab for the new street signs.

He added that plans would be worked out through the authority for installing new house numbers on all unoccupied, as well as occupied, houses.

According to Borg, the changes will go into effect about Friday, July 10, if the City Council approves the plans Monday.

APOLLO 11 COMMAND MODULE ON DISPLAY

The Apollo 11 command module that carried the first Americans to the moon is on display on the north side of the University of Nebraska Student Union at 14th and S. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration exhibit will be opened to the public at 9:30 a.m. Friday.

Viewing will be from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Friday through next Wednesday. In addition to the spaceship and a moon rock, the exhibit includes mannequins wearing the space suits worn by Neil Armstrong and Col. Edwin (Buzz) Aldrin. (Star Photo.)

1st Lady Serenaded

Manila (UPI) — Imelda R. Marcos, first lady of the Philippines, celebrated her 39th birthday with the help of the Vienna Boys Choir. The choir, which is en route to Expo '70 in Japan, participated in a Roman Catholic mass at the presidential palace.

Presidio Men Acquitted In Mutiny Case

Washington (AP) — The Army Court of Military Review threw out Thursday mutiny convictions against 12 soldiers who were involved in a 1968 sitdown demonstration at the San Francisco Presidio stockade. At the same time, the review court upheld court-martial convictions of the 12 on the lesser offense of willful disobedience of an order of a commissioned officer.

The court also affirmed findings against a 13th soldier who was convicted of willful disobedience.

The action completes review of court-martial convictions handed out to a total of 24 soldiers in connection with the Presidio incident on Oct. 14, 1968.

Thus, all 23 men convicted of mutiny have been cleared of that charge.

Previously, one case was thrown out and convictions of 10 other soldiers were reduced for mutiny to disobedience of an order.

The 24 soldiers were tried after they sat down near the stockade in protest against what they called mistreatment by guards, poor food, and unsanitary conditions.

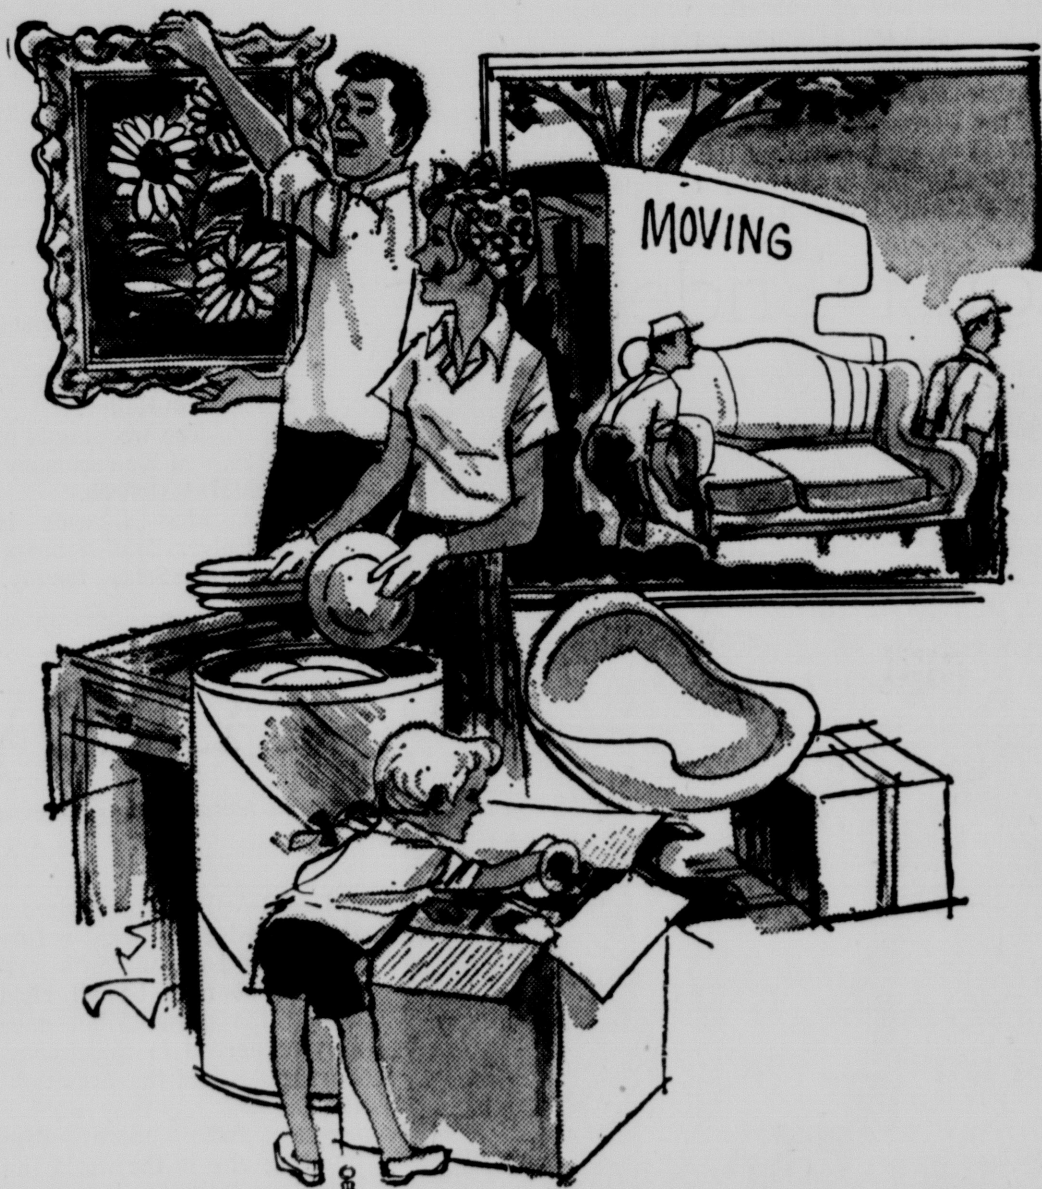

Don't miss it. News of friends on vacation, marriages, engagements, parties, P.T.A. notes and club meetings makes good reading in the family section of "Sunday Journal and Star."

Sports Editor, The Star

Denny's Back, Big Deal

Denny McLain is back. Big deal. He's hardly the Jack Armstrong-type all-American boy you'd like your son to pattern himself after.

Denny McLain is a living example of a new adage, "Crime may not pay, but it doesn't cost you much if you're not successful at it."

One of Denny's saving traits was that he wasn't smart enough to be a good crook. He tried, but he failed, just as he's failed at everything except throwing baseballs past hitters.

Alex Karras, the Detroit Lions defensive lineman who was once suspended an entire year for doing far less than what McLain did to get 90 days, may not be an authority on organ mastery, but he claims McLain is even a lousy organ player.

If Denny had been a little sharper businessman, he might never have had the chance to throw baseballs again. But because he failed as a businessman, he got only a mild slap on the paw from baseball commissioner Bowie Kuhn.

McLain's mistake was trying to become involved in a bookmaking operation in Flint, Mich., and as far as he knew, he was in the business. It wasn't until after he had been bilked of several thousand dollars that he discovered he was only a halfway participant in the operation.

His part consisted of putting money in, but not getting any in return.

Murder, Attempted Murder

Upon discovering McLain's less than all-American-image type activities, Kuhn handed Denny a 90-day suspension which ended Wednesday. Fittingly, the suspension was announced on April Fools' Day.

Kuhn answered critics of the lightness of the punishment by comparing what Denny did with what happens when someone attempts to commit murder and when one actually succeeds in committing.

"One doesn't get as much for attempted murder as for achieving the goal of committing murder," Kuhn reasoned.

Carrying that logic a step further, you might conclude that if Denny wants to get even with his batterymate Bill Freehan for what Freehan wrote about him in his book and succeeds in murdering him, he might be through with baseball forever, but if he simply wounds him, he can pitch again after missing a couple of starts.

If Denny had been successful in getting into the bookmaking racket, he might not have needed his ability to throw baseballs.

It's like someone going out to rob a bank. If he's successful and gets away, he doesn't need his job. If he bungles the bank robbery attempt, his old job is waiting for him after a 90-day vacation.

Takes Easy Way Out

Denny McLain has lived his first 25 years with a golden spoon in his mouth. He tried to be a crook, but wasn't smart enough. The 90-day suspension was the lightest fine in the history of sports for anything closely resembling the seriousness of his badness.

He tried to be a businessman, but failed, winding up owing everybody from the milkman to the plumber. He also took the easy way out of that — declaring bankruptcy — which is what one does when one doesn't have the courage to stick it out.

The fact that 50,000 people showed up in Detroit to cheer McLain's return may be a sign of our times — a bad sign. A sign that being a bad boy isn't bad. He may be the only guy in history who has been cheered by 50,000 people because he wasn't smart enough to be a successful crook.

Moonsplash 'Steals' Feature

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — A robbery of sorts took place at Ak-Sar-Ben Thursday afternoon or at least jockey Jeff Anderson considered it such a sure thing that it seemed like stealing when Moonsplash raced to victory in the $20,000-added Juvenile Stakes.

Perpetrating the "heist" were Mr. and Mrs. Robert Bensinger, the Chicago owners, and trainer Richard Hazleton, whose wife came along as an accomplice.

The "heist" netted them $122,275, 10% of which went to Anderson, who piloted Moonsplash through the 5½ furlongs in track record-tying time of 1:02 4-5.

And the Bensingers didn't even spend enough time in Omaha to leave any of the loot here. They left Chicago by Lear Jet, arrived here an hour later and returned immediately after the race was declared official.

Moonsplash made certain there was no need to waste time studying a photofinish of the race as he stayed close on the heels of pacesetter Miss Spy Song until they came off the turn, then raced away from the field down the stretch to win by an easy four lengths and the lead was being increased with every stride the unbeaten two-year-old colt took.

Asked if he didn't consider it a gamble to give up a full day's mounts at Chicago's Arlington Park to come to Omaha for one race, Anderson grinned as he replied.

"It was no gamble with this horse," he responded. "Have you ever heard of a sure thing?"

The crowd of better than 13,000, who came out in the 98 degree heat, also regarded Moonsplash as a near cinch, making him an even-money favorite.

He returned $4.00, 3.20 and 2.80 with Miss Spy Song paying 4.40 and 3.60 to place and Four Way Split returning 4.80 for a show ticket.

Not even an additional three pounds tacked onto his saddle at the last minute made a difference to Moonsplash, who picked up his biggest paycheck ever in pushing his unbeaten string to four.

Moonsplash had originally been assigned 119 pounds with colts who had won a previous stakes race being assigned 122. Officials decided at the last minute that one of Moonsplash's Chicago wins had been a stakes race and the additional three pounds were added.

Running at a record-setting pace is getting to be old hat for Moonsplash, who turned a three furlong distance in 32 1-5 in his first start at Turf Paradise in February.

In his last outing, he set an Arlington Park track record for five furlongs with a 57 3-5 clocking.

The colt was purchased for $37,000 at the Keeneland Yearling Sales in Lexington, Ky., a sales that has produced a number of Kentucky Derby winners and in the back of their minds, the Bensingers and Hazletons are dreaming of that possibility.

"You always carry that hope when you're a horseman," Mrs. Hazleton, who served as spokesman for the Chicago group while her husband and the Bensingers were filling out forms so they could make a quick exit with the loot, explained.

Action Getter May Step Out Of Leading Role

... PRESIDENT'S CUP CAST MUCH THE SAME AS FOR LAST WEEK'S OMAHA GOLD CUP

By HAL BROWN
Star Sports Editor

Omaha — An instant replay of last Saturday's $40,000-added Omaha Gold Cup could take place at Ak-Sar-Ben today in the $25,000-added President's Cup, but the leading man in that cast may step out of the role.

Action Getter, winner of last week's Gold Cup, has been assigned top weight of 123 pounds for today's feature over a mile and 70 yards against primarily the same cast he beat at a mile and one-sixteenth last Saturday.

But owners E. V. Benjamin II and J. M. Jones Jr. of New Orleans also have nominated their star three-year-old, who finished 13th in this year's Kentucky Derby, for Saturday's $40,000-added Brandeis Memorial at a mile and one-eighth and he would have to carry only 111 pounds in that one.

Benjamin and Jones aren't expected to make their decision until this morning, but indications are they will go with the son of Get Around and My Sparrow Saturday rather than today.

Should Action Getter, who has won two of his last three starts here, including the $40,000-added Gold Cup, not go today, Mike Ford's Parasol Pete likely would assume the favorite's role for today's feature.

Parasol Pete, who finished second to Action Getter in the Gold Cup, has been assigned 121 pounds by racing secretary Harry Krovitz and part of that weight will be made up of imported jockey David Kassen.

Parasol Pete, who was shipped to Ak-Sar-Ben for the Gold Cup from Monmouth Park, has won more than $70,000 this year.

Among the leading challengers is expected to be Iron Warrior, who finished last in the Gold Cup after winning the $20,000-added 4-H Handicap over Action Getter two weeks earlier.

Iron Warrior, who carried 119 pounds in his 4-H victory but had to carry 122 in the Gold Cup, is back down to a 120-pound assignment today.

The John King-owned colt has good breeding being the son of Native Dancer and the grandson of Count Fleet. The colt had been campaigning at Miami's Hialeah and

New Orleans' Fairgrounds tracks before coming to Omaha where he picked up his first victory of the season in the 4-H Handicap.

M. H. Van Berg has entered his British Ross, who like Parasol Pete was nominated for but did not run in the Kentucky Derby.

British Ross, who apparently has fully recovered from a broken foot bone that kept him out of the Derby, won the $20,000-added Breeders' Special in his most recent outing two weeks ago.

Others entered in today's feature are Woodie Can at 113, Pago Moon 112, Perpetual 112, Hoc Chi No 112, Stone Monarch 110, Deceptor 108 and Vagabond Flyer 106.

RARE MISS . . . Mrs. Hyland glares at one of her few missed putts.

By VIRGIL PARKER

Jean Hyland staged a fantastic final round comeback to capture the 1970 Lincoln Women's City golf championship at the Lincoln Country Club Thursday.

Defending champion Dorothy Schwartzkopf, who held an eight-stroke advantage going into the final day, ran into a pack of trouble on the 18th hole, losing four strokes and the match on the 72nd hole of the tournament.

Mrs. Hyland chopped two strokes off the deficit on the opening hole at LCC and two more by the end of three holes. Mrs. Schwartzkopf then settled down and the pair played even golf for the next nine holes.

After they each birdied No. 12 Jean squeezed the margin down to three strokes at 13. Dorothy held that same advantage through 17, thanks in part to pair of crucial four-foot putts on 15 and 16. But on 17 she missed a relatively short one.

"I didn't think I would need it with only one hole to play," Dorothy admitted. "So I just made sure I didn't three-putt."

But Jean played No. 18 in sensational fashion, splitting the fairway with her long tee shot and sending a four wood 20 feet above the cup. "The outcome is hard to believe," Mrs. Hyland said. "Dorothy just doesn't give away that many strokes. It never entered my mind that I could win."

But Mrs. Schwartzkopf dubbed her drive and then caught a tree with her second shot, the ball coming to rest against the trunk in an unplayable lie. She lifted it in three. Though her fourth shot cleared the tree it caught a greenside sand trap. Dorothy's blast failed to reach the green, so she was finally on some 10 feet away in six.

Jean's 20-footer hit the cup, but bounced out. She tapped it in for a par four. Mrs. Schwartzkopf then faced the crucial 10-foot side-hiller, needing it for a tie. But the ball slid by on the low side and stopped an inch away.

The junior girls championships are held in connection with the women's event and Sara Hinds, who carried a 20-stroke advantage into the final day, extended that another six shots in running away from the field.

Her nearest competitor was defending champion Barbara Deumy who wound up a distant 26 strokes back.

Artificial Turf Brings Complaints In Baseball

(Last of a Series)

New York (AP) — While artificial turf has contributed to an assault on records in track and provides uniform playing conditions in football, the only thing it has done for major league baseball so far is stir a heated controversy.

But, in a day when baseball is struggling to retain its image as the nation's No. 1 sport, it also may provide the one ingredient almost all members of the sport's hierarchy feel can stimulate renewed interest — more runs.

Artificial turf now is installed or is planned for seven major league baseball parks housing the Chicago White Sox, Cincinnati, Houston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, St. Louis and San Francisco. Three major problems have arisen:

—The surfaces are extremely hot, as high as 123 degrees in St. Louis.

—Players complain about sore legs, and talk about shortened careers.

—There is a threat to the art and strategy involved in bunting.

That there is a legitimate complaint about the heat was established recently when Bill Simons, the Cardinals' equipment man, took the temperature of the man-made grass surface in St. Louis' Busch Stadium.

His thermometer showed that on a day when the official temperature was 90 degrees, the temperature on the surface of the field was 123.

And the players who have labeled the artificial turf Mod-Sod had a new name for it — Hot Sod.

"On a hot day," says catcher Carl Taylor, "the turf will burn your feet."

Complaint No. 2 has come mostly from pitchers.

"It's hard to run on," says Bob Gibson of the Cardinals. "My legs are sore; they ache and all our pitchers feel the same way." "Artificial turf will shorten the careers of some players, especially where it covers the entire field as in Cincinnati," says Philadelphia pitcher Jim Bunning.

Don Segar, the Philadelphia trainer, supports the contention that it's harder on a player's legs. He says the Phillies are sore in the calves of their legs and achilles tendon-area for three or four days after playing on synthetic surfaces.

As for complaint No. 3, Wes Westrum, former manager of the New York Mets now a coach with the San Francisco Giants, says:

"It will eliminate the bunt because the balls roll so fast."

That aspect of artificial turf contains within it the major plus factor as far as the nature of the game is concerned — for there is little doubt that hard-hit balls skip by fielders faster on mod-sod.

Wimbledon Final A-1 Australian

... IN MEN'S DIVISION OF TOP TENNIS TOURNAMENT

Wimbledon, England (AP) — Ken Rosewall and John Newcombe, a pair of Australians, brushed aside a determined challenge from Europe Thursday to reach the finals of the men's singles in the All-England tennis championships.

Rosewall stroked his way past Roger Taylor, the hometown idol, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3, 6-3 in swirling wind on the center court, and Newcombe outclassed Andres Gimeno of Spain 6-3, 8-6, 6-0 to make it the 10th All-Australian final since 1956.

Rosewall will be fighting the years as well as Newcombe when the two meet in the final Saturday. The poker-faced little Aussie will be 36 next birthday, while Newcombe is 34.

Which makes him the oldest man to reach the final here in 40 years — since Bill Tilden won in 1930. And he'll be shooting for the third time for the crown, the only one of all the world's major titles to elude him so far.

Newcombe, 26, on the other hand already has his name on the roll of champions. He won in 1967 — the last year Wimbledon was an all-amateur affair. He was the losing finalist last year, while Rosewall twice has been beaten in the final — by Jaroslav Drobny in 1954 and by Lew Hoad two years later.

Unable to get a man past the quarter-finals, the United States pins its hopes on Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., in the women's singles final today. Billie Jean, three times a Wimbledon winner, plays the favored Margaret Court of Australia in renewal of an old rivalry.

The wind playing tricks with the ball and raising clouds of dust, spoiled both men's semifinal matches, but as Rosewall stroked his way past the burly Taylor, eager to be the first Briton to reach a singles final here since 1938, he looked every bit as good as in his heyday of the 1950's.

Taylor, with a fourth round victory over the champion Rod Laver to spur him on, tried to bludgeon his way past Rosewall, but the Australian looked more relaxed than ever here before as he calmly and clinically dissected the Briton.

Gilbert Canadian Leader

London, Ont. (AP) — Gibby Gilbert, the obscure former club pro who came from nowhere to win the Houston-Champions tournament, charged home with a blistering, seven under par 65 Thursday and took the first round lead in the $150,000 Canadian Open Golf Championship.

The balding Gilbert, a 29-year-old who returned to the tour this season after a five-year absence, held a one-stroke lead over a couple of former Masters champions, Art Wall and towering George Archer, tied at 66.

Grayling Bob Stone, the veteran who scored his first tour victory in the satellite Citrus Open earlier this year, followed at 68.

A large group at 69, three under par on the 7,168-yard London Hunt and Country Club course, was headed by 58-year-old Sam Snead and amateur Nick Westlock.

The others included Larry Hinson, Jim Jamieson, Steve Oppermann, Phil Rodgers, Kermit Zarley, Don Massengale and Al Balding, bidding to become the first Canadian in 16 years to win this national championship.

—NU GOLF MENTOR RETIRES— Coaching Helped Good Feel Young

Harry Good's more than 37 years in athletic coaching have kept him feeling young.

"That's one thing coaching has done for me—it has made me stay young... just like the people I work with," the veteran basketball and golf coach says.

Good, 68, officially retired from the University of Nebraska as varsity golf coach and assistant professor of physical education Wednesday after more than 24 years with the Cornhuskers. Besides his past 10 years as head golf coach, the Indiana native also served as the Cornhusker basketball coach from 1946-54.

While Good notes that changes in the structure and game of basketball have been relatively minor since he began coaching, he explains that golf has changed its format.

"When I first started in golf, we had nothing but dual meets," he says. "But now there are three, four, five and even six-team tournaments," which makes them more worthwhile to compete in."

Although Good credits his 1963 and 1970 golf squads which placed third in the Big Eight meets as his finest crews, he said Nebraska and other northern Big Eight schools find it impossible to compete with Oklahoma State and Oklahoma University.

"They (OU, OSU) can practice all the year-round with maybe three or four weeks of bad weather, while the northern conference schools are seriously hampered by winters, cold springs and falls," he says.

Stressing the stability of basketball, Good said that some years the pendulum has swung to offense and others to defense, but overall the only real innovations have been different types of pressing attacks or defenses.

"The only rule change I would advocate is raising the basket," he relates. "That would give the medium-sized, quicker player more of an opportunity since today's game is dominated by the larger players who just stand underneath the basket."

The veteran mentor named his 1948-49 basketball team which tied Oklahoma for the then Big Seven title and his following season's quintet which tied Kansas and Kansas State for the loop crown as his best NU teams.

Players who went on to athletic recognition from those two squads included Bob Cerv, who played major league baseball with New York and Kansas City and is now baseball coach at John F. Kennedy College and Bob Gates, athletic director and head basketball coach at Pershing College.

Good graduated from Indiana Central College and returned to spend 16 years as head basketball coach and six years as football coach. From there he moved to Indiana University to spend three seasons (1943-46) as head basketball coach and assistant baseball coach.

From there he moved on to Nebraska—a switch he has never regretted.

"I hate to give up my affiliation with the university—I have spent some of the best years here," he relates. "I'll try to relax now but that's going to be hard to do."

Aamco Nips NBC In Legion Action

Maury Damkroger collected two hits including a double to drive in two runs to lead Aamco. Jeff Patterson tripled for NBC driving in three runs and had two hits as did teammates Scott Levey and Kevin Gemmell.

Bassett Winner In All-Corners

Former Nebraska Wesleyan sprint star Tom Bassett, now an assistant coach at Lincoln High School, churned to a .09.9 clocking to win the Open 100-yard dash Thursday in an All-Corners meet at Southeast High School.

Hard luck often has plagued Bly, but the speed of his two-year-old, Prince Dan, is changing that picture. Prince Dan was an impressive winner in a stakes race at Ponner Park this year.

Cheerleaders Invited To Prep All-Star Tilt

Cheerleaders from the four schools represented by the all-star coaches have been invited to lead the pep activity at the Nebraska Coaches Association's All-Star basketball game on Aug. 21 in Lincoln.

Yell leaders from Elkhorn and Alliance will represent the North and the South will be boosted by cheerleaders from Aurora and Cozad.

Two Share Golf Lead

Muskogee, Okla. (AP) —Carol Mann and defending champion Donna Caponi took different routes to arrive at the same spot Thursday — two-under-par 69 — and shared the first round lead as the U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship got underway in blistering heat.

Miss Mann, the 6-foot-3 blonde who led the Ladies PGA money-winning list last year and won the open in 1965, bogeyed the last hole to mar an otherwise impeccable round.

Miss Caponi charged to three birdies on the last six holes and salvaged pars on Nos. 12 and 18 after hitting a tree and landing in a sand trap.

Lincoln Races Attracting Top Horses

Oklahoma trainer J. D. Taylor will bring "his best stable" of horses to Lincoln for Fairgrounds racing starting Wednesday, according to racing secretary Jack Fickler.

Other top trainers scheduled to enter top-flight thoroughbreds here include Louie Brandt of Omaha, Bob Lee of Silver Creek, Raymond Smyser from Missouri and Harold (Bud) Bly of Grand Island.

Smyser will be accompanied by his Dancing Late, a true speedster with a 1:09 3/5 clocking this year over the six furlong route.

Lee brings to Lincoln a string of high priced claimers in the $6,500 to $7,500 range.

Taylor has many of the late Walter Schultz's horses and will make a strong bid for leading trainer honors at the Fairgrounds, Fickler said.

Under Brandt's care will be horses who have won at Detroit, top runner Fancy Affair and the "Maye" horses owned by Omaha physician Lee Bevilacqua.

Lincoln Lass Wins AAU High Jump

Los Angeles — Fifteen-year-old Lincoln high jumper Toni Churchill leaped 5-5 here Wednesday with her Fosbury Flop style to win the girls' division title at the National AAU Championships.

Toni was third at 5-5 at Dayton, Ohio last year in the girls' class of the AAU, then went on to finish eighth in the women's division with a 5-6 jump.

Her best jump ever has been 5-7 in the city girls track meet. She registered a 5-6 1/2 leap at Hastings earlier this year in an AAU meet. The top two qualifiers in each event in the women's division will represent the U.S. on a European tour later this summer.

The East High sophomore is scheduled to compete Friday and Saturday in the women's division along with four other members of the Nebraska Track Club on the UCLA campus.

Lincolnetes Carol Frost and Rane Kletchka, two of the best in the nation, will perform in the discus. Betty Coats of Juniata is in the 100-yard dash and Linda Bone of Oakland, Iowa is slated for the javelin.

NU's Quarry Winner In International Meet

Stockholm — Don Quarrie, a University of Nebraska trackster from Jamaica, won the 200 meter dash here Thursday in an international track and field meet before 5,652 spectators.

Utilities Director Says Fairway Watering Halted

Watering of the fairways at municipal golf courses has been curtailed during the present hot weather, Public Utilities Director Lee Blocker said Thursday.

Blocker said that although he has urged city departments to cut down on their use of water, "there are no plans now to restrict the water usage by residents and businesses."

During the week, the city has used a record volume of more than 76 million gallons of water in a day, up eight million over the previous record of July 15, 1968.

Blocker said he is "concerned but not upset" about the volume of water being used, primarily due to the watering of lawns and use of air conditioning.

He said the Park Department is still watering the trees and greens but plans to wait on the fairways.

Watering the fairways will be done, though, before any harm is done, he said.

He said the city's conserving of water "is only a precautionary measure" and "not a sign of a possible water shortage."

Blocker added he has not noticed any sign of a decreasing water pressure due to the heavy use of water.

Vision-17 To Seek Federal Aid For Office

Executive Director Al Hanson outlined plans for his upcoming Washington trip designed to secure federal funds for a rural development office in southeast Nebraska, during a Vision-17 executive committee meeting Monday.

Hanson said the three-man team, including Dale Young and Burt Evans, would present a plan to officials, Agriculture Department calling for approximately $85,000 to establish the demonstration office.

The 17-county area of southeast Nebraska would be a "test tube" for similar projects across the country, Hanson noted. The office would investigate possible community projects, then set up tentative plans to assist Vision-17 in securing monetary backing for the programs.

In his report, Hanson also said that so far, Gage, Saline, Butler and Fillmore Counties have organized individual economic development commissions. Polk and Johnson Counties are not far behind in their programs, he added.

The commissions' next step is to conduct surveys of county residents in order to determine what projects should be undertaken. Hanson suggested using advertisements in local newspapers to establish "grassroots" interest in the programs.

In other action, the executive committee approved tentative plans for a committee-sponsored weekly radio program.

Plant, Animal Reaction To Warm Water Studied

cooperative study by 11 state and federal agencies of the effects of warm water discharges into the Missouri River by Omaha Public Power District's Ft. Calhoun nuclear reactor and Nebraska Public Power District's Cooper nuclear reactor at Brownville was announced Thursday by the State Game Commission.

The study's purpose is to determine the effects of heated water on plant and animal life in the river.

Both plants, tentatively scheduled to go into operation in 1972, will use water from the Missouri for their cooling.

First National Bank and Trust of Lincoln announced a gain of 17.67% in net operating earnings, before securities gains or losses, for the first half of 1970.

Earnings for the first half of 1970 were $982,456, while the six-month earnings in 1969 were $835,000. Based on 581,023 shares outstanding, earnings per share for the first six months were $1.69.

New income, after securities gains or losses, was $985,330 for the six months ended June 30, 1970, compared to $661,686 for the same period last year. Total deposits as of June 30, 1970, were $183,141,257, while total loans stood at $118,052,398.

Adams County Offers Tax Cut Explanation

Randall Rinquest, chief of the revenue division of the State Department, said Thursday Adams County officials had provided the department "sufficient information" on why reductions in property taxes were made recently in the county's property tax situation.

Rinquest said Adams County officials, led by County Atty. William Connolly, had appeared at the state hearing to present information for the Revenue Department to take to the State Board of Equalization. Rinquest said a 40% cut was made on all land in Hastings' downtown business district, a 10% cut on all agricultural land and a 10% cut on residential land in Hastings.

McManus Wants Payment Ideas

Acting Welfare Director Robert McManus has asked Nebraska's county welfare directors to let the State Welfare Department know in writing whether they feel nursing care maximum payments should be increased.

"I want a serious, objective answer from each of you," McManus told a workshop of county welfare directors. McManus asked the directors answer questions such as whether nursing home rates are fair, whether the department is getting the kind of services for patients which "we should" and whether the department is getting the patient care "which we're paying for."

Better Service Pledge Of Floor Coverers

Lincoln Floor Covering Association president Marvin Griswold pledged with fellow members Thursday to give Lincoln residents far better service in selling, installation and service in the products. The group met at its regular luncheon. It will also start an advertisement program to recognize its organization in the immediate future, Griswold said.

Nelson To Speak On Environment

Sen. Gaylord Nelson, longtime leader in the fight to protect the environment, will speak Wednesday at the University of Nebraska Student Union. The Wisconsin Democrat is slated to speak on "Life and Death of the Environment" at 7:30 p.m.

His appearance is sponsored under the university's continuing "performing artist series."

Child Care Meeting Is Set For July 15

A statewide governor's conference on community coordinated child care will be held July 15 in Lincoln. Representatives are being invited from public and private agencies, voluntary and professional organizations and parents groups.

systems. It is believed the water could be as much as 13 degrees warmer when returned to the river.

State Game Commission Director Willard Barbee noted that there has been some question lately whether heated water may be as harmful on river life as has been generally believed.

"But on the other hand," he said, "it may prove to be just as harmful as DDT. This is what we want to find out."

Other agencies involved in the study will be the State Health Department, NPPD, OPPD, University of Nebraska, Federal Water Quality Administration, Iowa Conservation Commission, Kansas Forestry, Fish and Game Commission, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers, U.S. Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife and the U.S. Geological Survey.

The commission said there will be five "pre-operative" sampling periods of the river water through July 1971 which will be followed by similar tests after the plants go into operation.

The commission said this would give a "before-and-after picture" of how heated water affects river life.

Omaha Blast 'Similar To Other' Recent Explosions In 2-State Area

Omaha (AP) — At least one federal investigator Thursday said that the early Thursday bombing of a business operated by a group of Negroes appeared similar to other explosions that have occurred in Iowa and Nebraska during the past six months.

Dwight Thomas, area supervisor of the Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division of the Internal Revenue Service, said the explosive that ripped a 10 foot hole in the roof of the building housing Component Concepts Corp. was similar to that used in bombings of police facilities in Ames, Des Moines and Council Bluffs, Iowa, and at an Omaha police assembly hall on June 11.

There were no injuries in the Thursday blast.

Thomas and Deputy Police Chief Glen W. Gates agreed that dynamite appeared to be the explosive used in the latest blast. However, Gates said the device did not appear similar to that which had been placed outside the police assembly hall and ripped a four-foot hole in the wall last month.

Investigators were still uncertain Thursday as to where the bomb had been placed. First reports were that it had been planted on the roof, but Gates later said evidence was that it went off inside the structure.

The deputy chief said he couldn't speculate on the motive for the bombing.

The firm, which employs about 25 persons, is located in a predominantly Negro area of the city. It manufactures parts for electronic equipment and recently was awarded two government contracts totaling some $400,000 to make equipment for the Federal Aviation Agency and Navy Electronic Supply Office.

Gates said that in addition to the damage to the roof, the interior of the building, along with equipment and materials, were heavily damaged. He said there was some doubt if the building will be structurally sound for continued operation of the business.

Joe W. Saunders, president of Component Concepts, said Thursday it was too early to estimate the total loss. He described the damage as "serious."

He noted that the firm had planned to move to larger quarters and employ another 15 persons.

Gates said the blast, which occurred about 3 a.m., was heard as far as two miles away. He said at least one nearby home reported broken windows.

FBI agents, along with those from the Treasury Department, are helping in the investigation.

Being The Boss' Wife Beats Being Boss' Son

Hollywood (UPI) — One thing beats being the boss' son in the entertainment business, and that's being the boss' wife.

Linda Harrison Zanuck, bride of Richard Zanuck, production chief at 20th Century Fox studios.

She is one of the stars of "Bracken's World," the weekly television drama dealing with life on the sound stages and executive suites of a major studio.

Linda held the job before she married Zanuck.

But life did not worsen for her after the nuptials.

Workers Friendly Indeed, Linda finds fellow cast members, the crew, guards on the gate and office personnel extraordinarily friendly.

The fact that she is young, beautiful and shapely should be taken into account, too.

"Dick and I went together for a couple of years before we were married," she explained the other day in her husband's commissary where the service was never better.

"Of course, it's easier working at a studio where my husband is in charge. Dick is well liked on the lot so I'm treated accordingly."

"In the beginning, when we were going together, people grumbled and thought I was working only because of Dick. I really wasn't that ambitious."

Had Several Roles

Before being cast in her role as Paulette Douglas, a young contract actress, Linda appeared in "Way . . . Way Out," "A Guide for the Married Man" and "Planet of the Apes."

All, incidentally, were 20th Century-Fox movies.

"I don't know why, but the more I worked the more ambitious I feel," she said, pushing her long, straight black hair away from her face.

"My part in the series is sympathetic and I don't have to go to work every day because the cast is large and the stories are diversified."

'Couldn't Ask For More'

"An actress couldn't ask for more than to play an actress. So far I've done chorus girls, a Navy nurse, a waitress and an Indian."

Mrs. Zanuck said there was no correlation between the machinations of the characters in the NBC series and the true-life activities on the Fox lot.

"It's made to appear on the show that the head of the studio isn't aware of all that is going on," she said.

"That's not the case here at 20th Century-Fox. Dick knows about every movie in process and all of the television shows. He's aware of what is going on every minute."

Changes Slight In Stock Market

New York (AP) — The stock market was little changed Thursday as some investors lightened their portfolios prior to the three-day July 4th weekend.

The Dow Jones Industrial average finished the session slightly ahead, but declines outnumbered advances among the issues traded on both the New York and American Stock Exchanges.

Volume continued very light. "By and large, investors have found little news on the economic front and the international front to stimulate trading activity," one analyst commented.

The analyst said President Nixon's report on the Cambodian situation and his appointment of a high-ranking diplomat to head the U.S. delegation to the Paris peace talks did not appear to have had much direct effect on trading activity.

The Dow average finished the day down 1.50 at 689.41, after having been up more than 4 points most of the day. Brokers said the late softness was natural prior to a long weekend.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 8.45 million shares, compared with 8.62 million Wednesday. Turnover on the Amex was 1.98 million shares, compared with 1.96 million Wednesday.

Declines led advances 651 to 559 among the 1,543 issues traded on the New York exchange, and 463 to 249 among the 969 stocks traded on the Amex.

The Associated Press 60-stock average closed 0.5 at 227.0, with industrials down .2, rails ahead .7, and utilities up .4.

Of the 20 most-active Big Board stocks, 17 declined, 2 advanced, and 1 was unchanged.

Topping the most-active list was Flying Tiger, off 7/8 at 11 1/4 on 410,900 shares in 12,000 lots.

Personality Change Not Likely To Affect Talks

Washington (AP) —Despite his top credentials as a diplomat, David K. E. Bruce's prospects are rated by most diplomatic observers as poor for negotiating a Vietnam peace soon.

A basic reason is that Washington, Hanoi and Saigon all apparently regard time as being on their side — and thus seem unwilling to offer significant new concessions now to break their long deadlock in Paris.

President Nixon's choice of Bruce, a seasoned diplomat, to head the U.S. negotiating team was generally praised. It meets calls by Vietnam doves for filling the seat vacated by Henry Cabot Lodge a half-year ago.

No Details

But Nixon, in announcing Bruce's assignment in a nationwide radio-television interview Wednesday night, gave no specific details on his instructions to the new U.S. negotiator.

In the rest of his hour-long discussion, the President argued against U.S. troop withdrawals, faster than what he portrayed as South Vietnam's growing ability to provide its own defense.

In Hanoi and Paris, North Vietnamese spokesmen promptly denounced Nixon's remarks and repeated their demands for a complete U.S. pullout and removal of the regime of South Vietnam's President Nguyen Van Thieu.

These clashing views appear to have set the stage for more of the same when Bruce arrives.

Judge Orders Review Of Viet War's Legality

Atlanta — A federal judge ruled Thursday that a soldier accused of atrocities at Song My could not be tried by court-martial until a three-man civilian judicial panel had decided on the legality of the Vietnam war and the constitutionality of the Army's Uniform Code of Military Justice.

District Judge Albert Henderson made permanent a temporary restraining order obtained last week by civilian and military lawyers representing Sgt. Esequiel Torres, 22, of Brownsville, Tex. The order marked the first intervention by the civilian judiciary in the pretrial stages of a court-martial.

Torres is charged with murdering at least three Vietnamese with a machine gun during the alleged massacre of more than 100 civilians, including women and children, at the My Lai 4 Hamlet of Song My by men of Company C, First Battalion, 20th Infantry, Americal Division, on March 16, 1968.

Torres is also charged with premeditated murder in the hanging of a Vietnamese man just before the My Lai incident.

Delay Granted

Earlier, Pfc. Gerald Anthony Smith, accused of murder and "indecent assault" on a woman during the My Lai incident, was taken before a pretrial hearing at Third Army Headquarters, Fort McPherson. Col. Richard L. Jones, the military judge, granted an indefinite delay of proceedings after both defense

Mitchell Urges Greater Use Of Free Speech Guarantees

San Antonio, Tex. (UPI) — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell Thursday urged local and state officials to encourage, not just tolerate, the peaceful exercise of freedom of speech no matter how unpopular the cause or how great the cost.

Declaring there is "more freedom of speech and more freedom of assembly today than at any time in our nation's history," Mitchell pledged, "so long as I am attorney general I will do everything within my power to see that these rights continue to flourish."

Mitchell told a meeting of the Texas State Bar Association the federal government follows guidelines for the application of the First Amendment "which I believe should be considered by local and state officials."

Tolerance Not Enough

He recommended they "encourage the peaceful exercise of First Amendment rights, regardless of how unpopular the cause. Merely to tolerate freedom of expression is not good enough."

"We believe it is appropriate to establish an atmosphere in which citizens want to express themselves on the issues of the day . . . In questionable situations it is always wiser to offer a little more freedom than a little less," he said.

Mitchell said state and local authorities should realize that most large political demonstrations entail some inconvenience to local residents, additional governmental expense, and may cause widespread community hostility to demonstrators.

"Willing Cost"

"But," he said, "we think that this should be a cost that a local community is more than willing to absorb as the price of being part of a free republic."

"Given our times, we cannot expect political demonstrations to be conducted like prayer meetings. We must expect language which may incite hostility or may be obscene."

Mitchell admonished police to "remember that they are professional law enforcement personnel who should not be swayed by their approval or disapproval of the views expressed by the demonstrators."

"They should be sensitive to and understanding of the fact that persons emotionally involved in a demonstration do not always behave in a normal fashion" he said. "If arrests must be made, they should be accomplished with a minimum of force needed to restore order."

Senate: More Talk, Less Work

Washington (UPI) — As usual, the Senate during the first half of the year met longer, talked more and passed fewer bills than the House, according to a compilation published Thursday in the Congressional Record.

The Senate had met 670 hours compared to 393 for the House, it had filled 10,388 pages of the Congressional Record compared to 6,296, and had originated 35 bills that passed Congress, while the House originated 71.

Isotope-Loaded Plane Crashes

Washington (UPI) — A twin-engine air freight transport, carrying at least two cannisters of radioactive material in its cargo, crashed into a Potomac River lagoon Thursday killing two men crew.

Two cannisters of radio-active isotopes, marked for delivery to the National Institutes of Health, were recovered intact from the wreckage about two miles south of the Capitol.

Debt Pared By Sale

Dallas (UPI) —Ling-Temco-Vought, Inc., says it has reduced its bank debt by more than $35 million with the proceeds of its recent sale of its 75 per cent interest in Wilson Sporting Goods Co. This reduces the parent company's debt to $75 million and will cut interest costs by $3.2 million a year.

Down The Drain?

From Washington's standpoint, officials say acceptance of the enemy's pull-out demand before Saigon can stand on its own would mean complete loss through a prospective takeover of South Vietnam—of the huge U.S. investment in lives and money.

From North Vietnam's standpoint, the Americans are engaging in sizable and continuing withdrawals. In Hanoi's view, to bargain now would be to do so with U.S. strength in Vietnam larger than it will be later on.

From Saigon's standpoint, the government naturally has no desire to see itself bargained out of power. It hopes to gain strength as time goes by.

Harriman Approves

W. Averell Harriman, who led the U.S. negotiators when the Paris talks first began more than two years ago, praised Nixon's choice of Bruce for the job.

"I hope that if Thieu does not cooperate," Harriman said, "Ambassador Bruce will be around to talk directly with the North Vietnamese. I wouldn't like to see a veto on American policy given Thieu in Saigon."

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE
Here's How To Work It:
One letter simply stands for another in this example, A is used for the three L's, K for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

Here is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right, then read the message the letters under the checked figures gives you.
